

JUST TWO WEEKS REMAINING FOR STANDARD HUSTLERS

Now On The Home Stretch in the Great Travel Club Competition — Winners of Special Prizes Will be Announced in Tuesday's Paper.

The result of the special prize offer which closed on Saturday evening cannot be announced until tomorrow's paper. Some orders came in that it has been found impossible to check them all up in time for this morning and indeed the greater part of today will be required in listing the subscriptions sent by those members of the club who were trying for the prizes. Sufficiently, however, known to indicate that there will be important changes in the standing of some of the members. All along we have been urging those at the top of the list to keep busy as there were others farther down who were working hard and who would come in strong a little later. This is now becoming apparent and the members who may think that they are well ahead will have a disagreeable surprise coming to them one of these days. A feature which seems to have been overlooked in this special offer is that the prizes were offered for new yearly subscriptions to the daily paper by mail at three dollars and by carrier at five dollars. Some of the members sent subscriptions from postmasters and clerks who receive the paper by mail at a reduced rate. These would not count, but it is believed that none of the subscriptions mentioned have changed the winning of the prizes. Only two weeks now remain, and there is bound to be a tremendous rush of business. There will be no more special prizes of any sort offered. All that is now left is the big prize list of trips to Alaska or the equivalent as originally set forth. And it should not be supposed that these wonderful prizes can be won without work. We are not giving away this money for nothing. We expect our members to work for all they get. The Standard's party on that great voyage to the coast, where the prizes have been won yet nor anything like it, and there are members pretty well down in the list who have every chance in the world of winning out if they desire to hustle for the next couple of weeks. Do not waste a minute of your spare time but get at this thing in earnest from now until the finish and see if you cannot be one of the fortunate five to go with The Standard's party on that great voyage to the coast. When the finish comes do not be in the position of feeling that a few hours more, which you foolishly squander, might have won for you one of the big prizes.

THRILLING STORY OF A SUBMARINE 300 Mile Voyage After Striking a Mine.

By Jane Anderson.

In a certain dockyard in England there is to be found a splendid tribute to the prowess of British submarines and the skill of those who man them. It is one of the finest of his Majesty's submarines, built, with her bow twisted and bent as the result of a collision with an enemy mine in enemy waters, covered a distance of almost three hundred miles under her own power, and arrived safely in a home port.

Through the courtesy of the British Admiralty it was permitted to see this submarine and talk with her officers and crew. She is in the best of health, how plating torn into strips and two of her torpedo tubes crushed. Her bulkheads are broken away at the bow; but in her tubes are two unexploded torpedoes. Their casing is twisted and slanted and the rear doors of them are jammed. But the quality of the high explosive in her torpedoes and the mechanism controlling it prevented an explosion, thus saving her from total destruction.

The Explosion.

She struck a mine head on. The explosion smashed two of her bulkheads, broke all glass aboard her, and sent the crew sprawling to the floor of the compartments, but her motors did not stop, her dials did not fail to register. She dropped to the bottom of the sea, and the water flooded in under the doors of the torpedo tubes. Within ten minutes after the collision she had been righted, had come to the surface, and turned her nose toward home.

When I looked at her, living with her exposed tubes shining in the sunlight and her bulkheads in strips of steel, it seemed incredible that she had been under the coast guns of the enemy, that she could have made in her damaged condition a journey of 300 miles, returning to a safe harbor with the information she had been sent to obtain. And added to this was the fact that she had made the voyage in a high sea, that for twenty hours, defenseless, she evaded the enemy patrols.

I had heard stories of German submarines sunk by a single shot, so I asked one of the officers how his boat had survived the tremendous shock of a mine explosion. "She held her own because of her strength," he said. "It broke her bow and it tore off two of her bulkheads. But the last one held. The efficiency of her pumps was not impaired. Within two minutes we had them working."

He asked me if I would not come below and see the marks of the disaster. Directly in front of me were the rear doors of the torpedo tubes, painted a brilliant white and to my right and left shining torpedoes were clamped in their tracks.

"You see," one of the officers explained to me, "we didn't know what had happened—the water was spouting in and broken glass was everywhere. We didn't know how much of her was gone. We knew that every man aboard her had been knocked flat on his face, that the glass of the dials was rattling about underfoot. But we didn't know what was to become of us. We were as far down as we could be, and, as for getting up—well, it didn't look like much of a chance."

Undaunted Crew.

"It was fine to see the crew. They got on their feet and were at their posts before the commander had time to order them to rise had gone through to the engine-room, and the pumps were going.

"It was still enough, down there after all the noise of the explosion. You could hear the motors turning—it's not much of a sound they make. But we were glad enough to hear it, and when we saw that the bubble in the clinometer was registering, and the inclination was becoming less, we knew that matters were not as bad as they might have been.

"Then they reversed the motors. We waited. That was a bad minute. Then the broken glass began to rattle about again. We were moving. We weren't long in getting up. At any time there's nothing like coming up into the air and sunlight after you've been under for a bit. But this was different. Yes, this was a bit different. . . . We came up. In the silence round us was the noise of the wireless sparking. The operator was testing it. At any rate we were floating. So we started and looking her over for the damage."

It was his ship he seemed to think of above all other things. "We took a

Is Now Cured and Attributes His Recovery to the Use of Dr. Chase's Medicines.

Some splendid results have been reported to us from the combined use of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills and Nerve Food. In complicated cases they work together with great success.

While the Kidney-Liver Pills arouse the action of liver, kidney and bowels, and so overcome derangements of these organs, the Nerve Food enriches the blood, strengthens the nerves and builds up the system in a general way.

Mr. R. B. Hillman, Putnam, Muskoka, Ont., writes: "After four years of bed-time, and the Kidney-Liver Pills only as often as is necessary to keep the bowels in healthy condition. Dr. Chase's medicines are for sale by all dealers, or Edmondson, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto.

look at the bow plating and at the bulkheads. They looked pretty bad, hanging loose in strips, but we decided we could make it. The engines were right, nothing broken there; the periscope was true. It was only her bow and her rudder that were gone. So we started back. We drove' along under our own power. It was a bit of a sea, but we made it. The waves broke over the bridge and pounded on the one bulkhead we had left forward.

"And so," he said, and smiled, "we came home."

Inner Mysteries.

Then he took me over his ship and explained its mysteries to me. He took me through four compartments, each one resplendent with white paint and polished brass. He showed me the periscope, lowered it, and revealed to me the grey horizon, with the ships ranged against it. When I marvelled at this he turned the periscope, and there flashed up before me, in a little clear image, a minute picture of men walking amidships of one of those distant vessels.

He explained the fine mechanism of the control-room, and pointed out the places for the men who have certain stations in this vital compartment. I do not think that I have ever seen such delicacy of construction as I saw in this immaculate little room, and such evidence of efficiency and concentration. Beyond the great watertight doors there was the engine-room, with the breathing pipes and white in takes overhead, and beyond another white door was the battery-room.

When I came up on the deck I remembered this room above all the others. But the officer who was with me would not admit that one part of the ship was finer than another. I looked again at her smashed bow and torn bulkheads, and I remembered that she had come some 300 miles with the heavy seas pounding her, that she had dodged the patrols, that she had sent no message for help. She had come back broken, battered, helpless. But the work she had been sent to do she had done.

crimson tulle, formed the floral decorations. The guests assembled in the dining room at 6.30, where supper was served, and a toast taken to the health of the "bride elect." During the evening, a guessing contest caused a great deal of amusement and the solo singing of little Kathleen Tait, was much enjoyed. Souvenirs at the guessing contest and for nearest sewing fell to Miss Evans, Miss Beatrice Harper and Miss Beale Lawton. A pretty guest prize was handed Miss Tait. The party broke up with the singing of "She's a Jolly Good Fellow" and "Auld Lang Syne."

On Monday evening Mrs. John Livingston gave a pleasant function in honor of Miss Tait, in the form of a linen shower.

On Wednesday afternoon, Mrs. A. J. Webster, entertained young lady friends at a fancy party, when Mrs. Tait was the honored guest. The rooms were gaily festooned with white streamers and violets. Quantities of apple blossoms were very pretty floral decorations. The hostess had as her aides at serving time, Mrs. Irene Wellings, Miss Jean Webster, and little Louise Balloch. The latter in a very graceful manner presented the "bride elect" with a charming shower bouquet of red and white carnations.

This afternoon, Thursday, the Ladies Aid of the Methodist church will entertain Miss Tait at a tea, in Tipperary Hall, when she will be the recipient of an address and presentation. Rev. Thos. Hicks of Marysville, was in town this week, en route to attend the Methodist Conference meeting on P. E. Island.

Mrs. Dr. Damon of Woodstock, is the guest of friends in town. Mrs. Dr. and Mrs. E. A. Smith, Miss Jarline, Mrs. J. E. Webster, and her sister, Mrs. Lusk of New York, were in Moncton on Wednesday, attending the Cowles-Smith wedding.

Mrs. D. S. Harper, Mrs. H. R. Steeves and Mrs. Hicks, Marysville, spent Tuesday in Moncton.

His Lordship Bishop LeBlanc, of St. John, was in town this week, officiating at the confirmation service in St. Joseph's church.

Posters are out for a "tea" to be held by the Red Cross Society in Tipperary Hall, on Saturday afternoon. Mrs. Bourque of Moncton, spent Sunday in town.

Mr. J. W. Worlman and Miss Worlman, were in Salsbury, during the week.

Large Use of Ribbon.

The uses of ribbon to give color as well as a graceful line, has long been known to dressmakers. But the plainness of the gowns for last year or two when they were scant, did not allow of its use. This season every width of ribbon pressed into service, from the string-like black velvet which does a white throat and falls in caude loops and ends to the line, up to broad sash ribbons half a yard wide, which are us girdles and for founcings.

The French dressmakers have decided that even this tallness should not be without its ribbon art. One of Georgette's most charming lears this spring has tiny frills of ribbon at the edge of cuffs, coat and shoulder-capes. three founcers which make the are also edged with the little platings.
