ENTICED INTO TAXICAB

Reports That Two Men Choked Him and Took His Roll.

Brantford, March 10 .- Enticed in taxicab out on the Cockshutt road, Paul Zulkovski, foreigner, 174 George street was held up and robbed of $1,400 this morning. Two men, later captured, are held for the offence.

Zulkovski's story is that he was asked by a stranger to go out and work on his farm. He went in a taxicab with two men. On the Cockshutt road one man grabbed Zulkovski's threat, and the other was atleged to have turned on the driver, who reported to the police that he had lost his watch and $42. John Barron, a farmer, in that neighborhood, heard of the crime, and when he saw two suspicious characters telephoned the police, who asked him to hold them. This he did with a shotgun, and the two were later arrested and brought to the city, being identified as Rafaelo Vtia, Brantford, and Raffassle Rosso, Toronto.

Commerce Along Rhine.

Germans declared it impossible to divert the heavy Rhine commerce overland outside of the occupied zone, so as to avoid the customs zone, and they expressed themselves as being firmly convinced that those directly affected would abandon competition in the world markets because of the high prices, unless they were aided by the Berlin Government. They admitted they thought this extension of help was improbable.

Allied officials had not been informed today as to the procedure planned for the administration of the new customs agne. They were of the opinion that some commerce from the interior of it was bound to flow through this dis-frict. They were emphatic in their assertions that German businessmen would not be ruined by the penalties placed on Germany by the Allies. Two thousand Belgian and French troops are billeted in Duisburg, and French and British gunboats are anchored in the Rhine and Ruhr Rivers.

EASIER TO PREVENT SLUMS THAN TO REMOVE THEM

Ottawa, March 10.—Canadian Press.—Addressing the annual meeting of the St. John Ambulance Association here yesterday, His Excellency the Duke of Devonshire spoke of the regret he felt at his impending departure from Canada, and, after eulogizing Canada's war efforts, said: "There is no reason for fussy interference with people's general standards of living, but undoubtedly much could be accomplished in the ordinary course of everyday life to bring to the attention of the population countrions that might be remedied. We in Canada are fortulate in not having large congregations of human beings in a small area. With due attention from federal, provincial and municipal governments, there need be no difficulty in making regulations to prevent anything like slums in our great cities There show accommodation for living in our great industrial centres. It is easier to prevent slums than to remove them."

Magistrate A. H. M. Graydon, when Following are the highest and lowest temperatures recorded in London during the 24 hours previous to 8 o'clock last night: Highest, 53; lowest, 28.

The official temperatures for the 12 hours previous to 8 a.m. today were: Highest, 36; lowest, 21.

Magstrate A. H. M. Graydon, when interviewed by The Advertiser, could see little reason why the curfew should be rung again. He believed that it would lead to no end of confusion. The parents were the ones who should look after the children, he said. If the city officials took it upon them-all such problems will very easily be solved.

If the city officials took it upon themselves to fix the time when the children must be off the streets it was interfering with parental duty.

The main objection which the magistrate had, however, was the confusion, to which, he claimed, such an institution would lead. Boys and girls under age on the street after a certain time would perhaps be taken to the police station, he continued. The police, then, would be besieged by frantic parents who were seeking for children who had not come home. Many of the parents too, he said, would object strenuously if their children were taken to the station house.

Magistrate Graydon claimed that it was an old English custom which had become obsoiete. Some years ago the curfew was rung in this city, but it was discontinued. If the practice was accomplishing anything he did not think that the custom would have died out.
