... The Housewife's Problems

The Housework's Problems "T He reason why wome disilies housework is that they let they work master them, in-stead of mastering their work." So says Dorothen Beach, Instructor in Home Economics at the University of Maine, in a recent namphlet got out from that Station. "Judging from the conversation between women, which one sometimes hears," she con-tinues, "one would suppose that no-class of people have more monotonous duries to perform than bousekeepers." class of people have more monotonous duties to perform than housekeepens. Housekeepins, is interesting and pre-sents innumerable possibilitis of or creative power, incenuity and origin-ality. One can use all the mental power which one is willing to put into it. "One of the first things which will help the busy housewife to solve some of the problems is to look over her time careful-ly and learn how to live on 24 hours a day. After sub-tracting sleeping, eating and dressing time, the housekeeper may find that she has left per-here 10 hours out of the 34 hap 12 hours out of the 24, all of which she spends in working. But there ought to be time in every woman's day for some out of door life and for resting and reading. How is she to get it "Perhaps the housewife feels "Perhaps the housewire reets that there is not a single thing which she can leave undone. Let her review the duties of the day. Are all the things which she does, really essen-tial to the health and happiness of her family and herself? For instance, is in present for her of her family and herself? For instance, is it necessary for her to have cake, cookies and doughnuts, all at one meal? Would it not save time and simplify meals to have just one of these? It is hard for wo-men to distinguish between es-centiale and arone excitate her energy. Second, there is one best way and one shortest way to perform any work done with the hands, or with hands and head working in cooperation.

In standardizing housework, Miss beach suggests the following efficiency methods:

ency methods:
1. By studying motions.
2. By applying commonsense.
3. By open-mindedness and reading what is written to help the housewife.
4. By standarding conditions under which one works: (a) Height of working surface-table, sink, etc.; (b) light; (c) ventilation; (d) right tool for the right purpose.
5. By writing down results of study to help others in their work.

The amateur gardeneer should always remember that during the hot dry weather the tax on the strength of plants is like it is on the human system.
