NO UNEASINESS AS TO FOREIGN Insurange Gorporation

No Reason for Anxiety on Part of Policyholders Re-garding Admitted Foreign Companies — Lloyds Under a Heavy Strain But Will Stand It.

The legally admitted foreign insurance compani appear to have ample assets with which to handle their American business, the United States branches being practically in the position of independent in-stitutions, with capital, surplus and reserves. Brokers report a few scattered cancellations of admitted foreign companies' policies, but these, it is believed, are actuated by national feelings such as English con-cerns cancelling German policies and vice versa. One of the title insurance con anies told a broker day that it would no lenger accept German or French

There seems no reason for any anxiety on of policyholders in regard to any admitted foreign company. In case of a very large conflagration while the war continues, it is likely that the policy holders involved in it might have their payments from foreign sources in some cases delayed some tim on account of the difficulty in getting money from

As to the non-admitted European companies writing surplus lines here, the situation varies and they must be considered individually. It is very clear that Lloyds, London, underwriters will be put under a heavy strain, which they would be in better condition to stand were they maintaining and reporting a proper premium reserve and not relying so much on their guarantees of each other to satisfy policyholders.

A LIFE SAVING INVENTION

Captain More, of Vancouver, Has Registered Patent For Rubber Suit, Which Tests Prove Effective.

(Special Correspondence.)

Ottawa, August 7.-Captain More, a Vancouve shipmaster, has invented a life-saving suit, and has had it patented in Canada, Great Britain, France, the United States and Belgium. This suit is made of rubber, in various sizes, and can be easily put on. It is entered from the top, and is equipped with a hood, which when adjusted, leaves only the face exposed to the water. There is a belt around the middle which can be quickly inflated by blowing into an attached tube. On each side there are pockets for food and valuables. The wearer floats in an upright position, and is not exposed to the uncom rtable contact with the water, as is the case of ordinary life preservers.

This invention was put to the test in Vancouver Harbor, where persons leaped from the deck of a ship into the water. The wearers floated in apparent ease, while their clothes were not affected. value of this invention seems apparent in cases like the "Titanic" and "Empress of Ireland" disasters.

PREMIUMS ON LIFE INSURANCE POLICIES WILL ADVANCE ON WAR

During South African War Extra Premiums Amounted to Five Per Cent. Additional-Premium Likely to be Heavier in Present Circum

What effect the present war will have on Cana dian life insurance companies is hard to say. Mr. Arthur B. Wood, head of the actuary department of the Sun Life Assurance Company, explained that as soon as Britain is involved the companies will issue a special war policy covering those who are likely to go to war. During the South African war this extra premium amounted to an additioal 5 per cent., or $50,000. Mr. Wood stated, however, in the case of such a serious war as the present one, the premium would likely be much heavier.

Although nothing definite is stated as having been arranged, there is little doubt that actuaries of the different companies are already working on these figures.

When asked how the Sun Life would meet an increase in the number of claims without liquidating some of their present holding at a loss. Mr. Wood more than sufficient to meet all claims unless something unusual occurred. (Although many American companies are writing a good deal of business on the continent, Mr. Wood stated that this was not the case with Canadian companies, and he thought they were in a very firm po
