David Ritchie, a moulder in John E. Wilson's employ, learned on Wednesday last that he had two wives. Mr. Ritchie married Miss Mary Jane Kane over 20 years ago. The two did not get well together and parted. Mr. Ritchie heard that his wife was dead in 1898 and he married Miss Carrie Anderson. On Wednesday last, Mrs. Ritchie No. 1 called at Wilson's foundry, and the surprise her visit gave to her husband can well be imagined. It is improbable that any trouble will ensue, as Mrs. Ritchie No. 1 says she came here only to see her son who was a boy when she left him, and who is a man now. She states she will soon return to Boston where she has been residing.

THURSDAY.

He was taken up to Mr. Edwards's cottage, where he remains now. He is now in his fishing camp and has been suffering greatly.—Beacon.
