ONE NIGHT ON MARKET

How the Farmers Get Accom dation In City.

Hundreds Sleep With Clothes On In Hay Loft

And Women Spend the Long Hours on Wagons.

A citizen who for some weeks has been taking a great interest in Hamilton market and the life of the farmer and fruit man started out yesterday to find out a few things for himself. He spent the night among them, and this is what he writes of what he saw:

For some weeks past a perplexing question has been, "Where do all the farmers stay for the night who come to market in the early afternoon, prior to market day?"

I knew they did not return home, be I knew they did not return home, because their wagons were on the market all night and the horses in a stable. The question aroused my curiosity, for hundreds of farmers come to the city in the afternoon preceding the regular market days, and at bedtime I had seen few farmers around the hotels.

"Where do they stary"

Where do they stay?

I have found out.
Last night I donned the oldest clothes
I could find, substituted for my linen collar a muffler of many colors, and for my Christy hat an "ear warmer,"
and in short made myself look a farmer
in his dishabille.
It was nearing 11 o'clock last night when I went to the market square, and I loitered round in conversation with some of the farmers, and while standing in front of the wagons dozens of people

some of the farmers, and while standing in front of the wagons dozens of people asked me the price of everything from onions to watermelons, and reluctantly I had to confess ignorance, and the look on their faces seemed to say, "What kind of a farmer are you, anyway:"

After chatting with several farmers and cetting my suction pipe of curiosity and getting my suction pipe of curiosit down into their well of information, down into their well of information, I succeeded in finding out what I wanted to know; that was where the farmers alept during the night.

By 11 o'clock I had become very friendly with a young fruit farmer from Bartonville, with whom I intimated a desire to stay through the might. Whether or not he thought I was a young farmer, a stranger, I cannot positively say, but he invited me to "come and dig in" with him in the barn of a nearby livery stable, where he said about 200 farmers alept.

"Where do the other farmers stay?" I questioned.

I questioned.

"Some in other barns, some in hotels and some on their wagons."

"Where do the women stay all night?"

"Oh, most of them sleep on their wagons when it is a fine night."

However, he signified his intention of going to the barn, so I went with him him.

"Will you let me share your robe?"
"Why, certainly."
So off we started; in a few minutes we were at the stable, and he went and gave a final look at his horse before going to the barn. "Now follow me." he said. We climbed a ladder to the here over a stable. over a stable. It was as black as the office cat when

This despatch, which was forwarded to Commander Peary, to whom it was intrusted when the Jeanie left the Roosevelt, is of particular interest. Dr. Cook said that when pessed for proof of his dash to the North Pole, that he left his data with Mr. Whitney, who was to bring it to the United States.

The Herald's correspondent mentioned that Dr. Cook met Mr. Whitney at Etah on April 17, and told him merely that he "had gone beyond the mark reached by Peary in 1906." Fairville, N. So far as known Thornton was the only white person in North Carolina ever legally married to a negress. He married Elsie Hargrove, by permission of the military authorities in control of the State at that time. The marriage was afterwards legalized by the constitutional convention held in 1968. He lived for many years as a negro, and his funerai will be conducted from a negro church. He leaves a widow and five children.

MORE WORRY FOR BOARD OF HEALTH.

Smallpox Outbreak In the West End Discovered by Dr. McGillivray.

An outbreak of smallpox in the west end of the city has materially compli-cated the health situation here, and added to the worries of the Board of Health. Dr. McGillivray, who, with Dr. Langs, is looking after the duties of Medical Health Officer Roberts during his absence, entered upon the duties yes ox outbreak on his hands. Three cases were discovered in the home o Mr. R. The outbreak can easily be traced. Dr. Mc outbreak can easily be traced. Dr. Mc-Gillivray learned that a young woman, Miss Alva Robbins, of Delhi, visited the Toronto Exhibition last week, came to Hamilton, and stayed one day at the Asbeen home. She was sick while there and, from what he can learn of her case, the doctor is convinced that she had smallpox. She left for her home after her short star here.

and, from what he can learn of her case, the doctor is convinced that she had smallpox. She left for her home after her short stay here.

It is impossible yet to tell how bad the disease may be or if the germs have been spread in other parts of the city.

A special meeting of the Board of Health was summoned for noon to-day to deal with the matter; also with the increasing typhoid fever outbreak and with the scarlet fever situation. The board had hoped to get the new small-pox hospital in the west end-for the scarlet fever patients in view of the crowded condition of the isolation buildings, but it is likely that the three smallpox patients will be sent out there at once. Dr. McGillivray immediately quarantined the house on Canada street. Although there have been many cases of smallpox in Hamilton in recent years, it is a very long time since there was a death from that disease.

The typhoid fever outbreak at the Ctiy Hospital is giving the Board of Governors some concern. There are no less than ten cases now among the staff and help alone. These include Dr. Langrill, the Superintendent, five nurses, three maids and two orderlies. Lieut.

Col. A. H. Moore, acting Chairman of the Board, will call a special meeting next week to discuss the situation. Efforts to ascertain the cause of the outbreak so far have not been successful, although the doctors are of the opinion that it spread from some of the typhoid patients. Before he was taken ill Dr. Langrill visited the farm of the dealer who supplies the milk, and had tests made of the water and milk. They showed no signs of the typhoid germ.
