lilted about, on' see blythely they song; flutter'd and courted, I kenna how lang; seart was as happy an' full as could be, minded me sae o' my Willie as' me.

I wonder if a' the wee birds o' the dell, As kindly and fondly their love tales could tell, And I wonder'd, if any twa mortals could be. As happy an' leal as my Willie an' me-

They a' may be happy—why should they no? An' lassies fu' meikle may think o' their joe; But naething on earth, in the air or the sea, Can be half sac happy as Willie an me.

My Willie's sae guide, an' my Willie's sae kin, And then, oh, thank Heaven, dear Willie is mine; In the joy o' my heart, the tear draps frae my o'e, To think we're sae happy, my Willie an' me.

The here may sigh for mair laurels, the loon;
The tyrant may grasp at a kingdom or crown;
Contented an' happy I'd live till I dee,
Thought they tak' a' the warld but my Willin frac me.

THE BATTLE OF LIFE.

One of the most significant phrases yet uttered by that felicitious writer, Charles Dickens, is the one which stands at the head of this article. Our life, from the cradle to the grave, the head of this article. Our life, from the cradle to the grave, is a series of antagonisms. Sickness, sorrow, temptation, sin, remorse, poverty, fatigue, hanger—these are the enemies which wage a continual fight against us. Within and without, the foes of the flesh and foes of the spirit, generally acting in concert, make our life one long and earnest battle. And in this strife how many fall, wounded and faint, and yield to the enemy. fierce or subtile, which is fighting against the soul. How different the circumstances and the inherent powers of those who are carrying on this conflict. Some are left from the first to contend single-handed and unaided, while others are aurrounded by a friendly band who encourage, by cheering words, valuable advice and efficient aid, him who, if left to himself, would fall. Some have an innate strength and energy of spirit which knows no defeat, while others yield ingloriously to the most insignificant fees.

There is no spectacle more interesting, more sublime, than a self, would fall. Some have an innate strength and energy of spirit which knows no defeat, while others yield ingloriously to the most insignificant foes.

There is no spectacle more interesting, more sublime, than a young man going out alone in the world to fight the battle of life. There are thousands every year leaving their homes to enter the arena of conflict and coatend as they best may with the adverse influences which best their paths. And how often do we observe that those who seemed weakest and least furnished for the contest are most triumphant. It is in his own soul that the young man finds his most efficient armory. If he can draw weapons from thence which may parry the thrusts of his adversaries, there is no fear of his being vanquished. Sometimes a young man seems for a time to succumb to evil influences and we deem him lost, but he finally rises again above temptations and triumphs at last. He has, perhaps, been drawn back from destrucion by the influences which were shed around his childhood by a wise and gentle mother. The influence of a mother's early prayers and counsels seems but a slender cord, but it is fastened to the tenderest spot in our bosoms, and if, in after life, we stray from the right path, that little cord will be found tugging at our heartstrings.

In this battle of life the most sublime achievements, the most glorious victories are won in silence and in secret. The struggle goes on where the world cannot see, and the final reward to the conquering fpirit cannot be fully realized until it has passed away from the world altogether. If we were gifted with keener perceptions, we might every day witness upon earth triumphs which would shed around poor human nature a halo of glory, and cause us to remem'er and realize that man was truly created in the image of God.—Boston Museum.

ANECDOPE OF GEN. JACKSON.—The Hon.—, who was a Baptist preacher, and Lieut. Governor, had at one and the same time been in the service of the Lord, and of the State of Illimit, becoming dissatisfied with the honors or profits, or both, of the posts he held, determined to resign them, and devote his time and talents to the assistance of the administration in carrying on the general Government. Accordingly he went to Washington and laid his case before the President. He stated his pretensions and wishes, narrated at some length all the prominent events of his political life, dwelling especially upon his untiring devotion to the Democratic party, the sacrifices he had submitted to, the exertions he had made in its behalf, and its consequent indebtedness to him, but said not a word of what he had done for the cause of religion. General Jackson heard the clerical aspirant through, in silence and after musing for a moment, put the following question to him:

"Mr. K., are you not a minister of the Gespel?"

"Then, sir," was the reply.

"Then, sir," was the General, with his usual quiet dignity, won hold already a higher office than any in my gift—an office whose daties properly performed, require your whole attention; and really I think the best I can do for you will be to leave you at liberty to devote your whole time to them, for, from what you tell me, I fear that hitherto they have been neglected." ANECDOPE OF GEN. JACKSON.—The Hon.—

FINE CAMBRIC HANDKERCHIEFS.—A most wonderful piece of linen has been woven for the World's Exhibition in the North of Ireland, pear Warringstown, by a weaver named George Haddock. It is a web of fine cambric handkerchiefs. Small print can be read through it, and yet the web is so close and compact, that a single thread would not be distinguished without the aid of a microscope, or rather web glass. The cambric when held up to the light, looks like a fine and airy fabric. In the production of this beautiful gessamer-looking cambric, Mr. Haddock almost realized what classic fiction accribed to the perfor mance of Arachne, who, as mythologists inform us, was converted into a spider on account of equalling that ingenious little artist in her production of fine webs.

Fig. Your Payens.—Having occasion a few days since, to look into the files of this Journal, published twenty and twenty-five years ago, we could not but 'think of the satisfaction every may would enjoy in the possession of such a record. A newspaper in the danger-cotype of its time, and in those diminative, dings sheets we had before us our present village in full life, as it existed a quarter of a century ago. The mean of business, and merchandise, and wares, and produce, each eulogistic as now of their stock is trade the politician, zealous in the maintenance of the right centred solly in him and his party; the competition and strife, the fears and hopes of all were before us as in real life. Here was the announcement of the marriage of those who have long passed the meridian and are in the "sere and yellow leaf" of age; and here, too, was the record of the departed, whose affiliated successors are among a still. The newspaper itself, with its grotesque advertisement and general typography, is the impersonation of the mechanic art of those days, and exhibits the contrast between that period and

AN EXTRAORDINARY CURE OF SCROFULA OR KING'S EVIL.

Extract of a Letter from Mr. J. H. Aliday, 203, High Street, Cheltenhum, dated the 22d of January, 1850.

To Professor Holloway.

Sun,—My eldest son, when about three years of age, was afflicted with a Ghandular Swelling in the neck, which after a short time broke out into an Ulcer. An eminent medical man pronounced it a very-had case of Scrofula, and prescribed for a considerable time without effect.—The disease then for four years went on gradually increasing in virulence, when, besides the ulcer in the neck, another formed below the left knee, when, besides the ulcer in the neck, another formed below the left knee, when, besides the ulcer in the neck, another formed below the left knee, when, besides the ulcer in the neck, another formed below the left knee, when, besides the oliver in the neck of the time my suffering hey had received the constant advice of the most celebrated medical gentlemen at Chettenhua, besides being for several months at the General Hospital, where one of the surgeous said that he would amputate the left arm, but that the blood was so impure, that if that limb were taken off it would be then even impossible to enblaw the disease. In this desperate state I determined to give your Pills and Ointment a trial, and after two months' perseverance in their mse, the umor gradually began to disappear, and the discharge from all the ulcers perfectly bealed, and at the expiration of eight months they were perfectly bealed, and the bey thoroughly restored to the bleasings of health, to the astenishment of a large circle of acquaintances, who could testify to the truth of this miraculous case. Three years have now elapsed without any recurrence of the malady, and the boy is now as bealthy as heart can wish. Under these circumstances I consider that I should be truly ungrateful were I not to make you acquainted with this wonderful cure, effected by your medicines after every other means had failed.

CURE OF ACUTE RHEUMATISM OF FOUR YEARS' STANDING.

Extract of a Letter from Mr. John Pitt, Dudley, 19th Jan. 1850, To Professor HOLLOWAY.

Sin,—It is with the greatest pleasure that I write to thank you for the benefit I have received from your Fills and Ointmeat, which have completely cured me of the Rheumatism, under which I suffered for this last four years, at lines I was so bad as hardly to be able to walk. I had tried every kind of medicine that was recommended without receiving any benefit. I at last thought I would give your medicines a trial and purchased from Mr. stolkin, Chemist of this Town, two boxes of Fill and two of Ointment, and is three weeks through them and the blessing of God, I was restored to health and strength, and am now me well able to walk as ever I was in my life. I am well known in this parish, having been sixty-five years in it, with an exception of ten years I served in the 24th Regiment of Foot.

CURE OF A BAD LEG OF MORE THAN SIXTY YEARS' STANDING.

Mr. Barker, of No. 5. Graham's Place, Drypool, near Hull, had ulcrs on his leg from the age of eighteen until apparate of eighty, and although for many years be had sought the first advice is the country, nothing was found to cure them. He very often suffered most exerusinatup pain for long periods together, which incapacitated him from attending to his business. He had given up all hupes of getting a cure when at last he was persuaded to try Holloway's Pills and Obintment, which he did, and however wonderful it may appear, the leg was thoroughly healed by their means, and by continuing to see the Pills alone after his leg was well, be has become in health so hale and hearty as now to be more active than most men of fifty.

Lima, 13th November, 1849.

One of the most eminent Surgeons in Lima (the Capital of Peru) had a child covered with Ringworm for more than six years; in vain he exhausted all his art in his endeavours to effect a cure. Not succeeding, he consulted among his brethren, the most celebrated medical practitioners of the City, but nothing was found to do the child service. When he was persuaded by Mr. Joseph P. Hague, the English Chemist and Draggist, residing at 74, Calle de Pallacio, to try Holloway's Pitla and Ointment, which was done, and after using six large Pote of the Ointment, with a proportion of the Fills, the child was radically cured, to the auxiliary prise of the whole medical professions.
