All were quickly and quietly removed, when the dreaded truth was verified. The nedy lay upon the leit side, and all the flesh was cut from the fimbs and back, the face, chest and extremities being all that remained untouched. tiesh had been carefully removed to the very bones. No evidence of violence ed, the face was covered with shaggy red whesers, and the head with darkish red hair. Over the skull was a close-fitting cap, apparently made of a knit under shirt, over which was a sealskin cap with ears, and tied under the chin. There were woolen bandages about the wrists and ankles, and considerable gravel upon The feet and hands seemed white and swollen. The intestines were in place, but the empty stomach only ntained a small amount of hair and mossy stuff. The remains were fully identified by relatives from the teeth, a crippled finger and the well preserved features. Death was evidently caused tinuing them. by starvation, as no marks of violence or disease were apparent. The sealskin cap and a lock of hair will be preserved.

The G. T. R. Sensation.

So far there have been only seven conductors suspended, but there are many more anxiously awaiting the falling of the blow. It appears that G. T. R. Detective Flynn had nothing to do with the ductors is not looked upon as a congenial task by detectives as a general rule, and ity in the loss of their relative. it is said it was found impossible to get men on this side to do it. Be that as it may, Manager Hickson wrote over to the head office in London, requesting to be furnished with two smart men who could do the job, as there were none in Canada who cared to take it up. The two men arrived out by the next steamer, and travelled the whole length of the Grand Trunk as high-flying Englishmen out doing the country. They soon found their way into the confidence of found their way into the confidence of the conductors, and claim to have made cases against them. Among other exploits they managed to catch a triket picker plying his trade. Perhaps if they had not shown their hand a little too openly in this particular case, they might have managed to secure evidence against a will preach part Sunday. managed to secure evidence against a will preach next Sunday. great many more. It is probable that the whole affair will be ventilated by the courts with the G. T, R. Co. as prosecutor. cutor.

In 1878 people voted for the N. P. without having the faintest idea what it without having the faintest idea what it meant, beyond a general impression that it was going to drive away hard times and make everybody rich and prosperous. Before they had time to fully realize its worthlessness they were forced by the action of the Government to pass a security of the distribution of the Government to pass a secur bery fund provided by the monopolists, was turned in its favor. By 1887 it is expected that the power of the monopolists will be so well established that the people will be unable to shake off their yoke, in spite of the fact that they will before then have fully learned that the N. P. is really a scheme for protecting wealthy capitalists and making the laboring man and consumers generally pay tribute to the rich. But the ballot may show that the mass of the people are not to be caught by chaff again, even though the husks are gilded to make them appear enticing. - [Ex.
