LONDON, Jan. 29.
The Bank of England discount rate has been reduced to three per cent. This is the third reduction since the beginning of the year.

MANCHESTER, N.H., Jan. 29.
The Merchants' Exchange Building, one of the most important business blocks in the retail centre of the city, was burned to-day. Loss, $300,000. The building was a four storey brick structure.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 29.
Direct communication by radio between Germany and the United States, without any relaying, has been established, the first message being sent by Emperor William to President Wilson.

LONDON, Jan. 29.
Earl Fitzwilliam has instructed his lawyers to strenuously fight the allegations contained in the petition naming him as co-respondent in the Leslie Melville case. The petitioner claims $100,000 for alienation of the respondent's affections. King George has written the Earl saying he must clear himself at the earliest possible moment. The Earl replied asserting his absolute innocence.

LONDON, Jan. 29.
According to the Daily Mail, Premier Asquith proposed a course, at the recent conference, to Bonar Law, Unionist Leader, on the subject of Home Rule, to concede to Ulster administrative autonomy on condition that Ulster submit voluntarily to the legislative authority of the Parliament at Dublin. Law refused to accept this solution, alleging that his acceptance would bind Ulster to concede what Unionists have sworn not to concede.

LONDON, Jan. 29.
President Wilson's policy towards Mexico is the subject of lengthy despatches to-day from British correspondents at Washington, but there is little editorial comment. The Pall Mall Gazette says the President has laid himself open to the charge of having chalked up 'No Huerta,' and then run away, and concludes by saying that the position becomes worse for the Washington Government every day that nothing happens. Financiers here interested in Mexico are becoming impatient at lack of action shown by the President.

City Club's Annual.

The annual meeting of the City Club took place last night, President R. B. Job in the chair. There was a goodly attendance of members. The reading of the annual report and the presentation of the accounts by Secretary F. H. Donnelly, were received and adopted. The election of officers for 1914 then took place and resulted as follows:

President—Mr. J. S. Munn.
1st Vice-Pres.—Hon. R. Watson.
2nd Vice-Pres.—Mr. C. A. C. Bruce.
Secretary—Mr. F. H. Donnelly.
Committee—Hon. S. Milley, Messrs. W. S. Monroe, J. Morey, P. C. O'Driscoll, W. T. Reay and J. Fenelon.
Auditors—Messrs. H. W. LeMessurier and F. W. Bradshaw.
A vote of thanks was passed to the retiring officers. At the close the papers for 1914 were sold by Mr. P. C. O'Driscoll.

For the Children's Use

"Can you," I said to my Druggist, "suggest anything for irritable skin in children? Mine are very prone to skin irritation in winter. A new woolen garment, a slight chafe, exposure to cold winds, and there are in trouble at once. Is there anything to relieve it?"

He handed me a cake of soap, saying: "You will find in this what you need. This is Zylex Soap, and is really first rate for the purpose. Try it."

I did so, with most satisfactory results too. Zylex Soap (as well as the Ointment which I always keep at hand) has proven its value to me. Zylex Soap is 25c a cake; the Ointment 50c a box. At all druggists. jan28,odt

AT THE NICKEL TO-DAY!
A BIG WAR FEATURE IN 2 REELS—2
"The Retreat from Moscow."

The historical retreat of Napoleon's army from Moscow in 1812. Reconstructed with the aid of ten thousand of the Imperial Russian Army. Every phase of the epoch-making incident is shown with an accuracy which makes this production one of the most remarkable motion pictures ever produced. The burning of Moscow after Napoleon's arrival, and the pathetic plight of the retreating army are re-enacted in all the grim tragedy of war. The scenes are photographed on the actual sites, and the ensembles were modeled after the famous paintings by Verestchaguine.

The Fate of Old Buildings.
Many of Britain's ancient buildings, famous for their historical associations, are being lost to the nation, owing to the progress of this utilitarian age.
At one time or another millionaires have offered to buy old houses connected with famous men of past generations, while others are maintained in a state of repair by the money subscribed by visitors.

Just over twenty years ago the cottage at Chalfont St. Giles, Buckinghamshire, in which Milton took refuge from the plague while finishing "Paradise Lost," was only saved at the last moment. Americans were arranging to buy it and take it to the United States, where it was to be re-erected. Fortunately public sentiment was too strong, and a fund was at once raised—to which Queen Victoria was a contributor—to buy it for public use.

John Masfield.

Another noble bard has risen, "a planet new swims in our ken;" no lily-fingered muse is his'n. He sings for strong, be-whiskered men. With things to say, he says them plainly, so man may know his thought; he sings his songs and sings them sanely, and gives his harp a rugged swat. Life is too short and man too busy to wrestle with the highbrow bards, who with allusions dim and dizzy are always loitered to the guards; who waste good ink and pens bewailing Prometheus upon his rock, or round the shores of Irenee soiling to get a string of gods in stock. John Masfield writes for folks now living, and of the people now on earth; in every line he writes he's giving a lot more than your money's worth. His verse is great, and when you know it, you'll murmur, as his lines you scan: "Here speaks a Man who is a Poet, here sings a Bard who is a Man!"

At the Crescent.

The Crescent Picture Palace concludes its week-end bill with a strong programme of pictures and song which will be found very interesting to its patrons, to-day and to-morrow. A big two-reel feature "In Love and War" contains a strong plot with many situations that will be appealing to all lovers of "Movies." "The Knight of Her Dreams," a fantastic comedy production on a huge scale is very favorable. Another comedy "All Through a Turkey," is certainly a cure for solemnity. Mr. David Parks, popular baritone, sings an illustrated song, "And the Green Grass Grew all Round." The Crescent during the past week has won many friends; the pictures are, besides educational and interesting, very enjoyable. The usual big matinee to-morrow.

Forbids Officers

Taking Hold of Arm of a Woman While Walking.
London, Jan. 21.—A Berlin despatch to the Daily Mail says that the Kaiser has issued a cabinet order forbidding any officer to take the arm of any woman, even his wife, while he is walking with her. The order says that if there is any awkwardness it must be done by the woman and not by the officer.
The Kaiser holds that leaning for support on the arm of a woman is not conducive to manly bearing. It is quite common for men in Germany to take the arm of a woman whom they are escorting.

Healthy and Unhealthy Lighting.

Gas, it may be said, vitiates the atmosphere. True. But it also helps to purify it. Its purifying power is greater than its vitiating power. Electricity does not vitiate, nor does it purify. Hear what three eminent men have said:
"Much evidence has lately been adduced to show that gas is more useful than the electric light in promoting efficient ventilation of air. It is for this, amongst other reasons, that gas is being frequently substituted for the electric light. The latest example is, perhaps, the Society of Medical Officers of Health, which has recently installed gas on its premises, after experience with the electric light.—Dr. Jamieson B. Hurry.

He would merely add that no member who had experience of their meeting room under the old conditions could deny the improvement that had taken place since gas had been substituted for the electric light and the new system of heating and ventilation had been installed.—Dr. Reginald Duffield, before the Society of Medical Officers of Health.
I have in my mind's eye, at the moment, a ball which, in the old days, was lighted by gas, and in which a large audience could, with comfort, sit through an hour's lecture, or with pleasure through a three hours' dinner, but which, with the march of civilization, had its illumination changed from gas to electricity; the latter been employed with all the latest refinements to effect the lighting under the best conditions, with the result that any large gathering within its walls leads to a state little short of apoplexy.—Vivian B. Lewis, Professor of Chemistry at the Royal Naval College, Greenwich.—nov5,tf

Moscow.

By GEORGE FITCH.
Author of "At Good Old Swish."
Moscow, the understudy of St. Petersburg as capital of the Russian empire, is as large as Philadelphia and resembles that city as closely as whiskers resemble Dutch cheese.

Moscow is so foreign, in fact, that the moving picture show has scarcely obtained a foothold there, and the horse still competes successfully with the automobile.

Moscow lies on the banks of the river Moskva, which wanders through the city at will in the springtime and is connected with St. Petersburg 400 miles north, by the night express which is four hours late. Viewed from a distance the city looks like a gigantic turnip patch, bottom side up. This is an optical illusion, however, as the turnips are merely church spires. There are more churches in Moscow than there are cabarets in New York, but their effect upon the civilization of the city does not seem to be quite so good.

Moscow is profusely afflicted with old cobblestone paving, and a trip through the city in a drabsty behind a team horse with a tall sothic collar is as interesting as a trip down the Coney Island bump-the-bumps. The citizens, judged from the streets, seem to be composed equally of priests, soldiers and long-oreared men in fur-lined dressing gowns. It is not up to date, but it has managed to accumulate its million people and enough manufacturers to keep them busy without a commercial club, which is better than any American city can do.

Moscow is 800 years old and was once the capital of Russia, but owing to the difficulty of moving the Baltic sea into the city it lost its job 200 years ago and is now merely a winter resort for royalty. Among the prominent men who have been entertained
