If I understand the situation correctly, while it is true beyond a question that a large ortion of the foremost advocates of total prohibition of the liquor traffic are in the Conservative ranks, the leader of the Opposition in this Province does not in the Conservative ranks, the leader of the Opposition in this Province does not believe in the principle of total prohibition, so it is boldly stated, and is backed up, as might be expected in view of that fact, by almost, if not quite, the whole train of liquor manufacturers in the Province. In view of such facts can there be the shadow of a hope that the present Opposition if put in power will do anything to further the cause of prohibition? It is true that a temperance plank was put in the platform constructed at the late conference, but it was surely the most innocent-looking thing that a blushing politician ever looked upon, with not the remotest reference to prohibition, or further restriction, but the enforcing of existing laws, which might be taken as a compliment to the present Government.
