secured. THE ANNUITIES ACT

Women of Canada Say Rates Are Unjust to Them.

Ottawa, March 1. - In the Senate

today the bill amending the annuities act was put through the committee stage. Senator Frost said he had received a petition from the Council of Women of Canada, asking that the bill be amended by reducing the rates charged women for annuities to the and same rates charged men. They point-ORS who design without "high and same rates charged men. They pointlow" bust measure are behind latest methods, and should investigate. Open more, on the theory that they lived longer than men. The statistics on which the theories of longevity were founded were those of Great Britain, not Canada, and it was not established that women in Canada lived on an average longer than men. Moreover, women had lower earning power than men, and therefore should not be charged a higher rate for annuities, Senator Frost said that on the third reading of the bill he would press for the amendments asked for by the National Council of Women.
