and wounded at this time, he would have carried his conquests through the back route into the kitchen, reckless of consequences and regardless of expenses. His spirit, however, being at last cooled by plentiful philanthropy, he was with some difficulty backed out into the Bonnygate Mr. Newton does not recollect of any customer having done so much business in his shop in so short a space of time, and with so little speaking.—Fife's Journal.

Moral Coercion.—It is very commonly murmured in the City that it is the intention of government to exclude from the court and from the ministerial parties all the foreign ministers or charge-d'affaires whose governments have not faithfully fulfilled their engagements with their creditors in this country. Such a proceeding as this would create great satisfaction. The more reasonable among the creditors of foreign governments are perfectly aware that our own government cannot adopt forcible measures to urge the completion of a private contract, but such a plan as this, which plainly draws a distinction between honest and dishonest states, seems perfectly practicable and no more than just. A similar spirit, if reported may be trusted, has extended to some of the clubs, who have, it is said, made citizenship in a "repudiating" state a sufficient reason for refusing the admission of candidates, however unexceptionable the individual character of such parties may be. In some cases, a rule like this might fall hardly on honourable and sensitive persons, but it is no bad principle in some manner to identify an individual with his government, since if all the individuals of a dishonest country were made to feel some practical inconvenience, a reformation would follow as a matter of course. If the report be true, there is no doubt that the clubs have adopted the suggestion in the Rev. Sydney Smith's letter.—Times.

A Real Traveller.—A wonder has lately arrived in India in the shape of a Norwegian runner, who is about to attempt the discovery of the source of the White Nile, on foot, and unattended. He expects to be absent from this only about four months, and he is to go in a direct line, crossing deserts and swimming rivers. He runs a degree in 2 hours, and can go three days without food or water, by merely taking a sip or two of syrup of raspberries, of which he carries a small bottle; and when he does procure food, a very moderate quantity will suffice: at times it is plentiful he eats enough for three days. This wonderful man carries with him only a map, a compass, and a Norwegian axe. He has already made some wonderful journeys, having gone from Constantinople to Calcutta and back in 59 days, or which the Sultan gave him 2000 dollars. And from Paris to St. Petersburg in 13 days. He has certificates from the authorities at Calcutta and St. Petersburg verifying these extraordinary facts. He is about 30 years of age, and slightly made. He trusts for safety in perilous journeys to his speed, as he says neither dromedary nor man can overtake him.—Indian paper.

ay last, a gig and horse, in charge of a servant of Colonel Law of Clatto, having been left standing before Mr. David Reid's shop nor, while the servant was inside executing his orders, the horse got startled by the noise, it is said, of a wheelbarrow which some person was rolling out of the neighbouring court. He immediately darted into Mr. Newton's stoneware shop opposite, and began dancing about amongst the crockery.

 Mr. Newton having endeavoured to stop the beast was soon dispossessed of with his broad back on the floor. The horse having satisfied himself with smishing two pounds nineteen shillings worth of good pigs in the front shop, resolved to take a shy at the element china in the back room, and accordingly knocked his head through one of the panes of glass, but was checked in the assault by the defences skillfully erected by Mrs. Newton, who maintained her position the press. While in this retreat she saw the brute thrust his bleeding head and horrors into the room, and coolly stand and eat a victim of the whole premises, - ga-ving earnestly upon her, while he allowed blood to flow from his reeking temples and one of her most fashionable basins upon what she observed of the determined spirit of the animal, Mrs. Newton is firmly of opinion that had he not been repulsed
