than eight species of the Cicindel'dæ frequented it, viz., longilabris, 6-guttata, limbalis, purpurea, vulgaris, 12-guttata, repanda and hirticollis.

I took Lexis bicolor Grote on this road. Thecla titus Fabr. was plentiful there, and Debis portlandia Fabr., Phyciodes nycteis Dbl. and Pamphila paniscus Fabr. were there to be seen.

Where the road passed through damp woods, a plant that attracted attention was the White Lettuce (Nabalus altissimus Hooker). Its stout stems rose like spires, from the wayside, tall as a man, and clothed with long leaves. This plant is a habitation and food-store for Aulax nabali Brodie. By slitting its stalks late in the season, the cells or cocoons of the species may be found. The imagos bite their ways of exit from their hibernacula in March.

Eastern Township Lanes.—There are lanes and by-ways in the Eastern Townships that more nearly resemble the green lanes of England than those I have spoken of, and interesting objects appear in them. Riding slowly through one such lane in the year 1867, I witnessed a sight which I had never seen before, and which I do not expect to see again, namely—a small flight of Passenger Pigeons (Ectopistes migratorius). There were seven or eight of them. They lit on some second growth maples a few yards in advance of me. They flapped their wings, and flirted their long tails, and preened their fine plumage, greatly to my delight.

Two other kinds of birds, especially worthy of notice that came under my observation in the Eastern Townships' lanes were the Great Grey Owl (Scotiaspex nebulosa) and the Barred Owl (Strix varia). The former whose big round head seemed too large for his body was greatly disturbed at my appearance. It rolled its head and fidgeted and blinked at me, but seemed to doubt the propriety of taking flight—it may have been recently mobbed by other birds. I left it unmolested to its wise cogitations.

The Barred Owl is a smaller bird-trim and alert.

Green lanes in those parts are frequented by the strangely elusive and tantalizing butterfly Grapta j-album, Boisd. & LeC. It is an insect of rich colouring and powerful wing. It rises before you, and you watch its direct and rapid flight, and note the spot where it alights. You hasten thither, and, drawing nigh, walk
