MICROBES CAUSE DISEASE AND MUST BE DESTROYED TO EFFECT A CURE

Of course there are Dullards, who fail to keep up with the scientific advancement of the age, who pretend to cure (or kill) with pills, plasters, and powders compounded from all manner of abominable drugs and poisons, "The ills that flesh is heir to," but do not succeed any better than their forefathers did, all because of their deep-rooted prejudice and sluggishness.

"Fools rush in where mortals fear to tread." Therefore, such unthinking, unscientific persons rush into the face of truth and deny this mighty axiom of medicinal progress and say, that instead of "Germs causing disease," "Disease causes germs."

"Shades of mighty ignorance." What crimes are committed in thy name against mankind! Is there one living, thinking person to be found, that does not believe that diphtheria, for instance, is caused by a deadly germ? Yet this is what some doctors advertise in this city; disease causes germs. Comment is unnecessary—let the public beware of them.

If Microbes were not the true and only cause of disease, no epidemics could result, no infectious diseases could be carried from one place to another, neither could Microbe Killer have accomplished the many cures it has.
