

Spot the difference between United's short haul and long haul flights.

In fact, there is none.

Because most of our flights consist of the 747-400, you can expect the same advanced technology. The same comfort. And, of course, the same high standard of service whether you fly short haul within Asia, or long haul to any one of our 250 U.S. destinations as well as South America and Canada.

Which brings us to conclude that if there is a difference to be found between our planes then it must be the destination.
