

Table of Contents.

CHAPTER XI.
His maiden term—Some of his first political observations—He becomes Receiver-General—There are prophecies about him.....	61
CHAPTER XII.
A foeman worthy of his steel—George Brown appears on the stage..	67
CHAPTER XIII.
Sir Allan McNab drops off the stage—Enter John A.—The Ministry of a day.....	73
CHAPTER XIV.
John A.'s father and mother—Something of his sisters—Death of the good old lady.....	80
CHAPTER XV.
Confederation—Its preparation and accomplishment—John A. becomes Sir John.....	85
CHAPTER XVI.
Cementing and extending the union—The eclipse, and the sunshine that followed it.....	93
CHAPTER XVII.
Sir John's second marriage—Lady Macdonald.....	99
CHAPTER XVIII.
Political anecdotes and reminiscences.....	110
CHAPTER XIX.
Political anecdotes and reminiscences, continued—The Mackenzie regime.....	120
CHAPTER XX.
Political anecdotes and reminiscences, continued—Sir John at the helm again.....	136
CHAPTER XXI.
The celebrated "all-night debate"—Reminiscences of the great campaign.....	163
CHAPTER XXII.
Words of wisdom and patriotism—Sir John's serious sayings.....	175

Miscellan

A multitu

Some coi

Personal

His religio

The last c

Last illnes

Premiers c

—His la
Senator

Sir John M

Hugh Mac

The Macdo

Old U.E. 1

Sir John's

John A., fr

Sir John, f

Sir John, f

Lady Mac