

VI.

On concluding this work, I feel it incumbent on me to insert a letter from WILLIAM SELWIN Esq. where he notices Scarce Books on Navigation, and connected with this Work:—

DEAR SIR,

Mr Clarke seems, in his letter to you, to have a design of republishing some of the most useful Treatises on Navigation. If he should resolve to do so, I think that the works of Pedro Nunes, or Nonius, the learned Portuguese; of our countryman Edward Wright; and of our other countryman Robert Hues; and The Seaman's Practice, of Richard Norwood; with likewise perhaps Simon Stevin's Hypomnemata Mathematica, will be the books most worthy of that attention.
