

The weather was phenomenal for that rainy country. One of the most severe blizzards I have ever experienced occurred on the trip, fifteen miles from town, far and many of the mountains were snow-covered. While we were at the Glaciers we had some very bad weather. At one time the weather was all that could be desired. The other half streak, the air vibrating, the wooded hillsides covered with snow, the low mountains in front were covered with snow and the sky was clear. At another time there was a heavy rain and a gale blowing. We had to leave the village because the scatting wheels of the sleds became frozen to the ground. We reached the village fifteen days later.

After our return to the village we took the thriving cities
