locals were given a decisive beating last night by the score of 11 to 4. Stratford outplayed them in every way with a much heavier team. The score was larger than it should have been, as Vair allowed several goals on offsides. Penalties were numerous all through the game. Both teams were inclined to mix it at different periods with Carson of the Classic Town crowd leading the way. Berger also pulled a rather dirty aside on Woods, which will no doubt keep him out of the game for some time. It is thought that two of his ribs when the first race for the America's are smashed, but there is no definite information on it yet.

The third period was the disastrous one. Stratford ran in five more in short order, and then let things drift for awhile. London managed to scramble two out of the mixing, Pring getting one and McKay the other. The last one was a goubtful one, as the puck ran around the top of the net and came out. Vair allowed it to go, though. Kelterbore, the fast little left wing man of the Classic crew, is the fastest man seen on the London ice this year either in junior or intermediate. His either in junior or intermediate. His stick handling is beautiful, and there is not a man on either of the teams has a show with him as a skater. Berger, the blode detense man of the same team, is a last man, and was the only will be in full swing today. one that showed anything like the speed of Kelterborne.

Mays and Quennville worked hard, and owing to their efforts the score was kept where it was. Time after time they were called on to break up time they were called on to break up a four-man combination. They usually did the trick, but Stratford has a wicked way of boring in on the net and getting passes from the and getting passes from the rear at the same time. This caused most of the trouble, as there was no one there to give Smith a helping hand. Mays Good. The combination of Stratford was eautiful. Time after time they came down with four men, and were successaway either. Mays was also the hardest worker in the aggressive line again
