we couldn't afford the services of a nurse, so I had to be with her day and night. She was a large woman and it took all my strength to lift her. Realizing that she had not long to live, she naturally wanted me with her all the time and any spare time which I could snatch from my housework I gave to her. Four months ago she died and an hour after the funeral I went into a dead faint. The loss of sleep, the worry and the extra day and night work had finally been more than I could stand. They put me to bed. I contracted a high fever and was delirious for some days. For a while our doctor gave up all hopes of saving my life. However, I did succeed in pulling through but the strain and the illness had shattered my nerves. Worry and trouble had left me a physical wreck. I was so weak I couldn't lift my hands to my mouth. For two weeks I had to be fed. I gradually got a little stronger but not strong enough to get out of bed. I was determined that I would not give up. Finally one day a friend suggested trying Carnol. I was so anxious to get strong that I was willing to try anything. I never would have believed that any preparation would have made such a change in so short a time as Carnol did with me. To day, thanks to. Carnol, I feel fine—in fact I never felt better."

Manager Gleason said he knew nothing of any of the acts related by Felsch. The players who were members of the team in 1917, 1919 and now—speaking through Eddie Collins, the captain—said Felsch was merely seeking to hurt organized baseball which had cast him out. They scouted the insinuation that President Charles A. Comiskey had conspired to have the Detroit club lose games in 1917 so that Chicago might win the pennant and, addressing Boston newspapermen, Collins pointed to Detroit's successes in a late season series here that year to show the fallacy of the claim.
