AFTER TWENTY THREE YEARS.

Everything Comes to Him Who Waits and James Brennan Got His Week's Pay.

The City Council was brimming over with fun on Thursday last—the result of a suit, David Gilfoyle vs. James Brennan—no lawyers. It seems that a few days ago Gilfoyle asked Brennan to change a twenty-dollar bill, which the latter readily did, giving him sixteen dollars in return. Brennan claimed that for the past twenty or twenty-five years Gilfoyle has owed him this amount, which he always refused to pay. Gilfoyle is now suing for the $4.

The case is an interesting one, and when it comes up on Thursday again the spectators, will have another chance to enjoy themselves.

Mr. Brennan told a plain unvarnished tale athe court last Thursday the purport of which was that when he come to St. John way back in the sixties, Gilfoyle recognised in him a bright and intelligent man, whom he at once hired to perform some work. For this work Jas. was paid. Again Gilfoyle hired him but this time he neglected to give him the adequate return for the week's labor, $4. Ever since that day James has been dunning his old employer for the small account and not until a week ago, 23 years afterwards, did an opportunity present itself for his reimbursement. On one occasion he spoke seriously to Gilfoyle on the subject—semi-theologically in fact, asking the latter where he expected to go when he died.

Gilfoyle replied "up above." "How will you get in?" asked James.

"Oh, I'll just knock at the gate, and when they find out it's David Gilfoyle that's there they'll let me in."

"No," said James, "They'll ask you first if your've settled up with everybody before you came. You'll have to say you didn't settle with James Brennan, "Didn't settle with James Brennan," says the man at the gate, "then go below."

Even such an appeal as this failed of its effect and Mr. Brennan had at last to recourse to heroic measures. He appropriated the amount and the matter in now in the magistrate's hands.

The Interpreter's Claim.

Chris Nichols, the Italian interpreter and barber, has entered a suit against Captain Massa of the Italian bark Famiglia S. for $55, which he claims is due him for acting as interpreter to the captain during his vessel's stay at this port. A capias was served on Captain Massa last night and he was escorted to jail. Bail was given and on Monday morning the case will come before the courts. Chris. claims that for 18 days he had been faithfully attending on the captain, but when he handed in his bill it was for it was for 15 days. The amount charged is $55.

Captain Massa says he hired Nichols for two days at the expiration of which he informed him that his services were no longer required. Chris, however, remained with him for the rest of the time and has charged for his services.

The vessel was all ready for sea last evening, but will now have to remain until the affair is settled. Captain Massa offered the interpreter $30, but this offer was refused.

Terrible Ravages of La Grippe.

La grippe is making terrible ravages at Advocate Harbor, N. S. A private letter just received hence says that numbers of people are dying daily. All the shipyards have been in idleness for several days owing to the very prevalent sickness among the carpenters. A young son of Albert Elderkin was attacked by the disease Tuesday morning and that evening he was dead. Mr. Walter Bartsaux, an aged man; Mr. and Mrs. Henry Morris, and Mr. John Morris have all died within a week. Several serious cases are reported and unless the malady is in some way circumvented there will be many more deaths. The wildest alarm prevails in the neighborhood.

Temperance Meetings.

There will be a public temperance meeting at Red Head on Monday evening next. The grand lecturer of good templary of the province, W. R. Robinson, will deliver an address.

On Tuesday evening, 19th inst., Mr. Robinson will also speak at Silver Falls.

Peerless District Lodge, I. O. G. T., will meet at Golden Grove on the 27th inst.

Mrs. Cook, the doctor's widow, is residing in St. John and Sir Leonard paid her a visit today to remind her of the fact that it was her roof that first gave him shelter in this city where he has achieved such great success.

THE ADMIRALTY COURT, was opened by His Honor Judge Watters in the Probate Court room in the Court House. This morning the case of D. J. Purdy and George Colwell, owner of the schooner "Mabel Purdy" against the owner of the barque "Paramatta" was taken up. The suit is for damages $2,255.85 caused by a collision in the bay of Fundy on the 20th of May 1890. Messrs Currey and Vincent for the plaintiffs and Messrs C. A. Palmer Q. C. and Mr. G. B.
