Dr. Bayard Entertained by a Number of Friends at Union Club Thursday Night. Last Thursday a number of the friends of Dr. Bayard entertained him at Union club on the occasion of his attaining his sixty years' practice as a physician. George McLeod was in the chair and Judge McLeod in the vice chair. Among those present were W. E. Vroom, W. H. Thorne P. P., Lt. Col. Markham, Lt. Col. Tucker, Simeon Jones, John McMil-lan, C. J. Coster, A. Chipman Smrth, Frank Stetson, J. R. Stone, J. C. After the excellent bill of fare had received full justice the chairman pro-

It has been my privilege to know Dr. Bayard for the privilege to know Dr. Bayard for the past thirty-seven years, during which time, he has, more or less, been my family physician, sometimes on occasions of joy, at other times on occasions of sorrow, but under all circumstances he has ever been the elever physician and the sympathetic friend, and, I may add, it was possibly owing to my long acquaintance with him that I have been asked to take the chair this evening. It is quite unnecessary for me to say anything as to his record in this city, where he has resided for the past sixty years. His interest in all matters pertaining to the health of the city was always active. The public hospital will ever remain a monument of his unceasing activity in that direction. He was remain a monument of ms unceasing activity in that direction. He was the promoter of that scheme and, af-ter overcoming many difficulties and considerable opposition, he had the proud satisfaction of seeing his efforts crowned with success. THE DUTY ON CALFSKINS.

Washington, Aug. 4—Assistant Secretary Howell made a ruling today in regard to calfskins, holding that they are dutiable as hides at fifteeen per cent ad valorem, and a circular letter has been sent out to collectors of customs to that effect. This ruling, it is claimed, is justified by the wording of raragraph 518 of the Dingley act, relating to live animals, which reads "cattle," and as a sub-head, "not less than one year old," by which it is inferred that the intention of congress was that "cattle" should include the young as well as the adult animal. The contention of the importers was that calfskins should not be classified as "hides of cattle," but as "skins," and admitted free.

DEATH OF CAPT. JAS. H. McLEAN. Captain James McLean, one of St. John's best known ship captains, died on ith inst. at the residence of his son, George E. McLean, New York city. Some two months ego Capt. McLean, while in the act of boarding a large private yacht, of which he was the master, fell between the vessel and the wharf, sustaining injuries from which he never recovered. He was about eighty years of age. Capt. McLean leaves four sons, James A. McLean and Hugh McLean of St. John: Colin McLean of Calais, Me., and George E. McLean of Calais, Me., and George E. McLean of New York. His wife died some fifteen years ago. Captain McLean had command of some of St. John's best sailing ships in his time. Among his more recent vessels were the brig Abbie P. Fenno and barks Louisa Jewett, Mokanna, and E. Sutton. For about two years he was in command of the Canadian fishery protection cruisers General Middleton and Vigilant in the Bay of Fundy. His death will be sincerely regretted by a large circle of friends and acquaintances. LT. COL. ARMSTRONG

Alt the close of the inspection Lt. Col. Armstrong addressed the battallon as follows:

"Tonight I have an announcement to make the control of the lve years, and I feel that I should retire—not that I have grown tired of the work, for I take as much interest in the regiment today as when I was gazetted to it—not that the five years imitation of command forces me out. for this regulation does not apply to my case—nor yet that the age limit als me to retire, for that would now voluntarily give way so that others who are so well entitled to it may

"During my connection with the corps. I have used my best efforts to promote its interests, but without the co-operation of its members I could have accomplished nothing, and therefeel that I can refer to some of our successes without claiming them as due to myself. In the last year we have, for the first time in our history, obtained the coveted first prize in the tablishment, No. 1 company having taken that position with very high marks, closely followed by Nos. 2 and 4, thus securing to the corps the first sitions in the dominion. An-

and to us. Thanks to the liberality of the efficers, 500 copies were printed and found, without a single volume being on sale. Twelve years ago we had no band, today we have a regi-me all band second to none in the lots provinces. These and many other successes are due to the excels, but I trust that all such incidents may be overshadowed by the many friendships which I have made among you. I intend shortly to hand over the command to Major Jones. I trust that you will all give him the same hearty support which I have same hearty support which I have enjoyed, and that the regiment may continue to grow in esprit de corps so as to become a model for imitation.

"Each officer and man may well feel proud of belonging to a regiment such as is today the 3rd Regiment Canadian Artillery, and that years may not diminish its vigor but add to the record of its successes, will always be my sincerest wish."

To many the annuncement of leutenant Colonel Armstrong's re-frement came as a complete surhe has exercised command, now near-ly thirteen years. Under his direction year intil, as mentioned in his vale-dictory address, the first place in the general efficiency competition was won by the corps last year. He will trans-organization on 26th March, 1866. Under the system prevailing in these times he obtained a lieutenant's and subsequently a captain's commission in the reserve militia. In June, 1880, he received a commission as major in the 8th Princess Louise Hussars. In this position he remained until January, 1835, when events rendered it advisable that a new commanding officer should be obtained for the artillary. These was then a period of in-

Agance at a regimental inspection of today is enough.

It is to be regretted that Lieut.-Col. Armstrong retires at such an early age, as he has not yet quite attained 50 years, and it is to be hoped that the benefit of his knowledge and experience will be retained for the regiment, in some other capacity than that of commanding officer.

Major Jones, who will succeed to the command of the regiment, is too well known to need introduction. He came into the regiment as a second lieutenant in No. 4 Co., under Lieut.-Col. Armstrong. Since then he has risen regularly to his present rank. While in command of No. 4 company as captain, that organization met with some very gratifying successes. Of good appearance, popular and tasteful, the regiment should be able to maintain its efficiency under his command.

After the close of the inspection the officers of the corps, together with a large number of officers of sister corps, were entertained at supper by Lt. Col. Armstrong at his residence, Wellington row.

The toasts were "The Queen," "Lt. Col. Montizambert" and "Lt. Col.

During the course of the evening the band of the regiment appeared on the lawn and played a large proon the lawn and played a targe programme of choice music. This is Col. Montizambert's last inspection here, and his last year as inspector of artillery for the dominion, he having been appointed D. O. There was a large cowd of spec-tators at the inspection, among them Sergt Major Jeffreys of the Sixth Resey. Mr. Jeffreys was very much pleased with the drill as gone through

The scores in the firing at Fort Duf-ferin on Tuesday have been made up by Col. Montizambert, and show the three positions in the dominion. Another matter which especially pleases me is the preparation and completion of the valuable history of the corps, a work which had been delayed almost too long, and which entailed upon the author an enormous amount of labor, and is in every way a credit to him and is in every way a credit to him and to us. Thanks to the liberality of the officers, 500 copies were printed following result: Company No. 2, 64 points; No. 5, 58 points; No. 3, 57 points; No. 1, 38 points; No. 4, 35 points.
