ST. JOHN STAR.

ST. JOHN, N. B., NOVEMBER 3, 1902.

ROUND THEM UP.

The Star gives up a good deal of space today to a fuller account than it had before published of the extraordinary conduct of the Doukhobor fanatics, whose insane pilgrimage is without a parallel in history. There have been strange pilgrimages in past centuries, but none exactly like this twentieth century movement of Mr. Sifton's pet immigrants.

From what one reads in some of the papers the government is extremely anxious lest some person or persons should apply the doctrine of physical force in dealing with these disciples of non-resistance. It may nevertheless be questioned whether the application of a restraining influence by the mounted police would be any more of a crime than the deliberate starvation of an infant or the imperilling of the health of a whole community such as that of Yorkton. These amiable people, who are so impressed by the sacredness of all life that they will not even destroy the vermin on their own filthy hides, and yet would rather see an infant die than permit it to drink the milk of an animal, are not fit to be at large. There is probably not a sane man in the Northwest who does not at this moment have a deeper feeling of respect for that hitherto abhorred instrument the Russian knout than he ever had in his life before the Doukhobors landed on these shores.

Canada cannot rid herself of these people. They are here, and no other country would have them. They must simply be rounded up and compelled to change their ways. Their leaders should have been arrested at the outset. It is simply outrageous that the government has permitted these people to leave their homes and tramp over the country terrorizing the inhabitants. It is well enough to boast of liberty, but not to allow it to degenerate into license of this sort.

Nor is there any guarantee that the mania of the Doukhobors will not presently assume a more militant phase, and change them from non-resistant to fighting fanatics. The case is one that calls for prompt action on the part of the government. The whole western country will be in a ferment if the Doukhobors are to be permitted to wander about. No settlers would care to live in a region where they might at any time expect their turnip patch to be visited by a squad of peripatetic vegetarians, singing and shedding vermin at every step.

It is Mr. Sifton's move.

The practicability of oil as fuel in steamers appears to have been satisfactorily shown on the other side of the earth. A Sydney, Australia, cable of October 29th, says: "The Shell Transport Company's steamer Clam has arrived here from Batoum, having made a record voyage. She used oil as fuel, which increased her speed half a knot, as compared with her last voyage under coal. The consumption of oil was eighteen tons a day, against twenty-four tons of Welsh coal and twenty-eight tons of English coal. Her crew is one-third smaller than usual."

A St. Petersburg despatch says: "The chief of police of the town of Kerchenka, Russia, has authorized the editor and two contributors of the Southern Courier to carry revolvers in consequence of attacks made on them by some of their readers."

Up to the hour of going to press the editors of the Telegraph have not applied to Chief Clark for permission to carry weapons, although their readers have been "pounding the warpost" for some time and are said to be liable to break out almost any day.

In connection with the boy problem there is another that might be profitably considered by those who are giving the former their attention. Despite some rather pessimistic utterances heard of late, the general opinion remains firm that education is desirable. It would be interesting to know how many boys and girls of school age there are in this city who are not getting even a common school education. It would be interesting to know what proportion of the children of the foreign colony in this city are getting any schooling at all.

It is stated that the native chiefs of India are displaying the greatest eagerness to offer assistance to Great Britain in Somaliland. One has offered to send six hundred troops mounted on camels, another his whole camel corps, and a third a camel squadron.

The exact date of the beatification of P. Tregally and Mr. Tweedie by the Pope is not known, but it cannot be many editorial columns distant, if the whitewash holds out.

DR. GATES'S RETURN.

Rev. Dr. Gates resumed his work with German street Baptist church yesterday, and at both the morning and the evening service the building was filled to its capacity by the members met to welcome their old pastor, and many others from churches outside who came to greet again a man whose worth and work had won their respect and their love. The congregation at night was especially large, filling every seat and necessitating the placing of chairs along every aisle, in the front of the church and even on the platform.

In the morning Dr. Gates preached from Exodus 3:14, "My presence shall go with thee and I will give thee rest," dwelling on the surety and eternal nature of the promises of God. During the service he took occasion to express to the congregation his appreciation of the confidence they had shown in him in recalling him; his pleasure at the cordial welcome they had given him and his assurance that he would in every way strive to live up to the standard their hopes had fixed for him.

His evening sermon was based on Acts 13:28, "To you is the word of this salvation sent." It was an impressively earnest presentation of the nature of the Gospel of Christ, its universality, its freedom and its application to the individual followed by a moving appeal urging its acceptance by everyone.

Preceding his address, Dr. Gates briefly expressed his gladness at returning to those whom he had learned to love in other days, to those who in every way had been immeasurably kind to him. He thanked them for all their goodness and asked that their prayers might be for him that while he was a citizen of St. John he might so labor together with them that the city might be the better and more as God would it to be. He was proud of the city of St. John, he said. No body could go away from it, as he had done, after working among its people for many years, and return without the feeling of being home again, and the inclination to whisper a benediction over the place.

The music at both services was more than usually good. The choir, under the leadership of Miss Tarbox and strengthened by the recent addition of Miss Drake gave several selections in excellent form, and in the evening their music was added by a trio composed of Miss Tarbox, P. J. G. M. Day, F. D. O. and a solo given by Miss Tarbox. German street congregation will extend a formal welcome to their pastor and his wife at a reception to be held on Wednesday evening.

THE DOUKHOBORS.

Extraordinary Scenes Attend Their Insane Pilgrimage to Yorkton.

Infants Allowed to Die—The Men March Toward Winnipeg—

Pitiful Condition of the Women and Children.

WINNIPEG, Oct. 28.—Sixteen hundred Doukhobors have reached Yorkton. They had with them Dominion Immigration Agent C. W. Speers. The spectacle presented was a lamentable one. They had camped last night without shelter and the thermometer stood at 14 degrees below freezing. The mob consists of men, women and children, including infants in arms, and one born last night, whose mother marched in the procession. Some sick were borne on litters; some were barefoot; many wore rubber boots and others coarse sandals, made of binding twine. Simeon Tcherninkov, who talks a little English, and whose bare, brown feet were looking for new light, and looking for Jesus. When asked where his boots, he held up his naked foot and cried: "Jesus' boots."

Mr. Speers succeeded in getting the sick, the women and children housed in immigration sheds and other buildings, much against their will. Mothers deserted their babes, and allowed them to be taken into the shelter, refusing to follow them, until forced along. Infants who die en route have been thrown into the bush by the roadside.

SOME STRANGE SCENES.

The smiles of bystanders were answered by the recitation in Russian of the 22nd Psalm: "They that see me, laugh me to scorn." A long, lean, scraggy, with unkempt beard, disheveled hair and bloodshot eyes, stood at the head of the halted procession and prayed. He was protected from the wind by a long cape reaching from his shoulders to the ground, while many of his followers had not sufficient clothing to prevent their perishing in a snowstorm.

A sympathetic citizen offered a glass of milk to a blue and pallid baby, whose mother split the milk to prevent the child's drinking it. Blouses offered to children their last night's clothing. No food was forbidden to be used.

This morning a party tramped from Yorkton to their last night's camping ground in the bush, about three miles from town, with no shelter except the bush, and warmed by camp fires. Men, women and children, young and old, aged and infirm, had bivouacked. All night parties had strayed through the bush, picking the God-given and "greasiness" fruit of the rosebush to eat. The fruit of the rosebush, the labor of animals had helped to produce this fruit, and they could eat it without sin.

Their prophet had prophesied that their arrival at Yorkton their babies would be taken from them, and they gave them willingly, for was not the voice of their prophet the voice of God?

RELIGIOUS CRAZE.

Hitherto the Doukhobors have not been propagandists. They have not sought to extend their faith among their Canadian neighbors. Now they are missionaries and have invited outsiders to join them. These Doukhobors favored by the government consider themselves the elect of God, and it is uncertain where their craze will end.

Seven hundred more fanatics are camped in the neighborhood of Pollock's bridge, seven miles out. These are more violent than the rest, being exalted with the exaltation of starvation frenzy. One woman had to be held while her famishing babe was given a draught of milk, which she endeavored to prevent. Many people are fearful as to the outcome, and with all their gentleness, these Doukhobors, who, though they do not shed blood, yet tell without a quail of having buried five priests of the Russian church, may be moved by a similar spirit in their present insane condition.

THE MEN MARCH OUT.

YORKTOWN, N. W. T., Oct. 28.—The first round in the fight between the immigration officials and the Doukhobors occurred at three o'clock this evening and resulted in a victory for the disciples of passive resistance. Having wrestled with the spirit all night near the cemetery and all forenoon, it was revealed to these spirit wrestlers that they should march on Winnipeg, and about two o'clock they took up their straggling line of march down the railway track, leaving their women and children behind them.

"They have broken out," sang out General Immigration Agent Speers, and he forthwith issued orders to round them up. A party of mounted police and several special mounted constables rounded them up and marched them back to town. All went well until they turned up the street leading northwards toward their villages, and when they realized that they were being driven back to their villages they came to a full stop.

"Shove them along, keep them going," commanded Mr. Speers, while a crowd of curious citizens lined the sidewalks on either side. The Northwest Mounted policemen and special constables spurred and backed their horses in amongst them, but the sea of Doukhobors opened and swallowed them up. The plunging, rearing horses moved themselves, but not an inch further moved the crowd.

At this point the citizens remonstrated against the manner in which the Doukhobors were being treated and the five hundred male nomads that comprised the party seized the opportunity and bolted once more and at last reports were all along their way to Winnipeg. Over a thousand women and children have been locked up in the immigration hall and warehouse of Yorkton.

ON TO SALT COATS.

WINNIPEG, Man., Oct. 30.—Mr. Speers (general agent) forces at Yorkton, N. W. T., have retired from the field, and the Doukhobors have passed through Rokeby and are now entering Saltcoats, a small village in Assiniboia, of two hundred inhabitants. The Doukhobors are firm in their resolve to find the Messiah, and having heard of the stone at the sepulchre being rolled away, they have rolled over all the large stones along their line of march in the season of search for the Saviour. The men have deserted their women and children and have marched down the railway to invade Manitoba and enter Winnipeg. The spirit has told them to go south, and they say that Jesus has cleared the cloudy sky and made the weather warm this late in the season to allow them to travel. The nights have been cold enough, however, and the farmers report the loss of blankets and clothes from their yards.

The Russian government could not drive us with all their Cossacks and knouts, and this government cannot drive us with a few boys on horseback, said an English-speaking Doukhobor. Mayor Hopkins, of Yorkton, is becoming alarmed for the sanitary condition of the town. Last year Yorkton suffered from a typhoid epidemic, due to the sanitary conditions caused by the Doukhobors' camp in town at the time. Now the deserted women and children in the immigration shed, and the hundreds huddled in the halls and warehouses, threaten to convert the streets into one immense latrine.

Captain Rykard's farm, three miles down the railway line, has been looted of turnips, potatoes and cabbage, which have been converted into Doukhobors' energy. When they first invaded Yorkton they refused food of all kinds, and their looting of vegetables, which have been hauled by horses, is some evidence that general hunger is getting the better of them.

The people of the territories hope the Doukhobors will cross the Manitoba boundary before the weather gets too cold, as the Territories have no desire to be saddled with the cost of maintaining such a large and indigent outfit. Pestilence threatens to complicate the situation among the women and children, unless prompt measures are taken for their relief. The supply of food is exhausted last night, and the wail of hungry children was wafted in the wind.

ABSOLUTELY APPALLING.

A special correspondent at Yorkton writes:—I have just had an opportunity of investigating the condition of the women and children confined in the buildings in this town. The situation is absolutely appalling. I have, in connection with John Snell and Geo. A. Bull, bought a quantity of food for the women and children confined in these buildings. It was with difficulty that we got them to take food, but being absolutely famished, after they had made a start, it was very difficult to restrain their appetites. Measures taken here by the government are inadequate. The officials informed us that they are holding $2,000 of Doukhobor money, yet we saw women and children with starvation written on their faces, children tugging at their mother's breasts without obtaining any nourishment whatever. There has been neglect in facing the whole situation. I hope something will be done to arouse the public attention to this fact.

"Words cannot picture the situation which is facing us. We are facing positive starvation on the part of great numbers of these people. There is not sufficient food in sight at the present time to feed them for two days, and they are remaining with us the situation would be frightful. If it were possible to avoid sending out this telegram, but there seems to be indifference in regard to the situation, which is liable to lead to dreadful results. Let this telegram arouse public attention, that the town may be relieved from an intolerable situation, as well as some relief being given to a misguided people."

IN THEIR BARE FEET.

SALT COATS, N. W. T., Oct. 31.—The

Winnipeg train has just passed the main body of the Doukhobor pilgrims, who were marching beside the railway track, and will reach Saltcoats in an hour. The Russians looked miserably wet and cold after a night spent without covering on the prairie, but they trudged sturdily along and paid no heed to the cries of passengers. Many of the pilgrims were without coats, and although the morning was bitterly cold some were in their bare feet. Their progress appeared slow and they all looked as though they were in the last stages of exhaustion.

MUST USE FORCE.

YORKTOWN, N. W. A., Oct. 31.—"I think it is beyond power and reason to parley with the Doukhobors any longer. Exhaustion, hunger and sleeplessness have rendered their condition such that they can no longer be reasoned with. I have worked night and day with these misguided people and must confess defeat so far as inducing them to return to their homes is concerned. One thing is certain, the Doukhobors must be taken into custody. I have wired the authorities at Ottawa to give the question of their condition their most serious consideration. It is impossible to predict the outcome. It seems to me that force now is necessary, as reason and kindness have failed. If disaster is to be prevented, the frenzied Russians must once be induced to abandon their mad march. I can suggest no method to bring this about. This statement was made by Mr. Speers, the colonization agent, this morning, and it is a summary of the situation. Two women are now hopeless lunatics. The men slept in ditches and on the railway tracks last night, and trains had to be run with care in the district where the Doukhobors are on the march."

A SERIOUS CHARGE.

MONTREAL, Nov. 2.—Chief of Police Legault is to be called upon to answer serious charges. It is alleged that while seized in a raid on a house of ill-fame found their way to the chief's private residence, and that when the chief learned trouble was brewing he returned to the police captain who made the seizure. It is said he then called upon the captains to make return of all liquors so seized in their possession, his object being to show that there was nothing missing. It is stated that Captain Millet's return will declare that part of the stuff in his possession at present has not been since the time it was seized.
