The fourth heat was won easily by the Queen in 2.514. Before the fifth heat there was considerable talk that Golding had been 'pulling" the Queen. This was not a fact, the result of the last heat being on account of the sulky being changed, and a lighter one substituted. This heat was won in 2.50 by Gipsy Queen, she leading

THE GENTLEMEN'S DRIVING RACE

The sixth and last heat was called on about half-past six, and there was considerable excitement and a little betting. The Queen led at the start, but was passed by Gipsy on the last quarter. The Gipsy, on the home stretch, being in advance, took the Queen's place, and came in a length ahead. Golding, the driver of Queen, claimed the heat, as McLeod had a en his place. McLcod said Golding had cut him off too closely on the first quarter, whereby he had lost ground, and again entered his protest against Bustin's shouting. This caused considerable excitement during which McLeod used anything but proper language to the Judges and Dr. Greene, the Clerk. Before the decision of the heat, he accused the Judges with consulting with Dr. Greene abou the dead heat and when this g ntleman denied it, he was told by Mc-Leod that he lied. Those who were in the Judges stand knew this to be incorrect, as Dr. Greene was himself most particulas about addressing the Judges, and more than once requested others not to do so. The Judges read the rule which distanced. It was a little hard that Mc Leod should have lost the race through a The "Quarter Stretch Badge" adopted by the Directors is a capital idea, and prevented any of that rushing on the track between the heats, which has been usual
