CROWNING OF A GIRL AS QUEEN.

IMPRESSIVE CEREMONIES THAT WILL BE EUROPE'S NEXT ROYAL EVENT.

Preparations of the Dutch for the Ceronation of the Young Queen Wilhelmina
-Details of the Ceremonies-Dignified Bearing of Her Majesty That Is to Be -Sept. 6 the Great Day.

(Special Correspondence.) (Special Correspondence.)

Amsterdam, July, 1898.—It is surely woman's era whon three queens rule as many nations of Europe. This will be the case when the next great event of the year will have passed into history by the installation as Queen of the Netherlands of Wilhelmina, daughter of the late King William III. and his second wife. Prinam III. and his second wife, Prin take place in the New Church, Amsterdam, on Sept. 6.

To grow up with the eyes of a nation watching for the girl to develop and rejoicing as she changes from a pretty child into an unusually attractive woman is a lot that anyone might envy. Her budding beauty has been raved over and written about as few other young women's looks have been; her mental qualities have been praised in the way to turn the head of a less vain young person, and, in a word, she has been the idol of the nation and the pride of every Dutchman since she first won their hearts as a cute child of 7 tiding a pretty little Shetland pony. Now that the time has come when she is to leave childhood behind and become the woman and the queen the picture she presents is one that the nation respects as well as loves, for Wilhelmina is a dignified miss, who knows how to deport herself when the public eye is upon her and great functionaries of state are paying her homage.

The programme is already arranged.
The Queen and the Queen Regent are to leave the Hague, where the birthday of Arriving at the Weesperpoot station at Amsterdam they will be met by the leading citizens and representatives of the Government, and accompanied by a scort of hussars will be driven to the palace by a route sufficient ly circuitous to enable a vast concourse of spectators to witness the procession. In every street to be traversed the decora-tions, will be of the most ornate descrip-tion, and loyal greetings will meet Her Majesty's eye at every turn, while a por-tion of the route, it is expected, will be lined by representatives of "labor corpora-tions" carrying their respective banners. Between the hours of 7 and 8 on the fellowing morning (Sept. 6) curious music will fall upon the ears of citizens, for from the steeples of the different churches trumpeters are to play excerpts from sacred works—surely a novel depar-sure in reveilles.

In the afternoon the Queen will again drive through the town, and will visit, among other districts, the Jordan, this being the Jewish quarter. With the fall of night the city is to be illuminated, a brilliant display being anticipated, while it is also expected that the Queen herself will be driven through the streets, in orger that she may see the bright and radiant devices prepared in her honor.

The following morning, like the day previous, will be ushered in with similar musical strains, while at 1 a.m. Queen Wilbelmin is to be screnaded by the Netherlands Choral Society. The afternoon will witness the great popular festival, near that wondrous museum which contains Rembrandis's masterpiece. From the square the Queen, accompanied by

After this interesting pageant has passed before the eyes of the people, the men, women and children of Amsterdam are promised an opportunity of making merry over a "water carnival," in connection with which the craft in the harber and cannls will be gayly and taste

This powerful force is put in action at night or at any time when the enemy's ships alone are expected to be in the harbor. On all other occasions the current is maintained at a very low ebb, when a pressure on the buoy would not fire the mine, but would merely telegraph a signal to the shore station, indicating to the observer there which particular buoy had been struck. The change from signal current to firing current may be made in an instant, so that in the event of a harbor engagement between friendly and hostile fleets a home vessel may be allowed to pass unscathed over the mine, while the enemy's ship, touching the buoy immediately afterward, will be wrecked on the enemy's ship, touching the buoy immediately afterward, will be wrecked on the spot. The ground mine is not, however, dependent for its explosive power on the collision of a ship with the buoy. The shore operator may explode it at volition whenever, in his opinion, occasion arises, but it is always difficult to tell exactly what point on the range line a crossing vessel occupies, and for that reason the mines are laid in groups of three, all three to be fired simultaneously in case of "judgment action."

HIS BOAT FOR A LIFE. An Instance of Real Benevolence by Great Events From Little Causes.

While staying at the court of Frederick II of Prussia Voltaire presented Mme. de Pompadour's compliments to the king, who scornfully replied, "Je ne la connais pas." Out of vengeance for so much insuit, as she deemed it, madame induced the weakminded Louis XV to convert his country's long standing hostility against Austria into friendship. A Franco-Austrian army then took the field against Prussia, and as it was an easy matter for madame to enlist the practical sympathy of Elizabeth of Russia, who had been the subject of Frederick's indiscrect remarks also, half a million lives were lost.—Notes

An Instance of Real Renevolence by a A very ourlous and beautiful letter was once written to President Lincoln that would certainly have given him peculiar pleasure if he had read it, but he never did. This is how it was: In 1863 some pirates from Peru captured and carried off some natives from the Marquesas islands in the south seas. One of them was a son of a powerful chief, and the father made a vow that he would, for revenge, eat the first white man who fell into his hands.

A man named Whalan, the first mate of a New Bedford whaling ship, was before many months captured by the Marquesans. He it was who must furnish a feast for the

A man named Whalan, the first mate of a New Bedford whaling ship, was before many months captured by the Marquesans. He it was who must furnish a feast for the cannibal chief, but all the people he ruled ever were not cannibals. Among them was a native missionary from Hawaii named Kakela. Kakela had just received a present of a boat from religious people in Boston, a valuable six cared boat that he needed much in-his missionary work. He set about trying to save Mr. Whalan's life, but the chief would give him up only on one condition—that he should have the new boat in exchange for the captive. Kakela bought him at that price and helped him to leave the islands.

The story came to President Lincoln's knowledge, and he characteristically found time to send a message and a present to the poor south sea missionary. Kakela wrote a letter of thanks in return, which closed with these sentences: "As to this friendly deed of mine, its seed was brought from your great land by certain of your countrymen who had received the love of God. It was planted in Hawali, and I brought it here that these dark regions might receive the root of all that is good and true, which is love. How shall I repay your great kindness to me? Thus David asked of Jonathan and thus I ask of you, the president of the United States. This is my only payment, that which I received from the Lord—love.' May the love of Jesus Christ abound toward you till the end of this terrible war in your land."

and."

Before the letter reached the White flouse President Lincoln had died,—Chiago Inter Ocean.

A Humane Engineer.

One never knows the value of an amisble deed till he knows all its consequences, and the merit of it is in not knowing them all beforehand.

An engineer of a passenger train on a Mississippi railroad was driving through a snowstorm, eagerly scanning the track
as far as he could see, when, half way through a deep cut, something appeared lying on the rails. It was a sheep with her two little lambs.

His first thought was that he could rush lying on the rails. It was a sheep with her two little lambs. His first thought was that he could rush on regardless of them, probably will not almage to his train; but the sight of the innocent family cowering in the storm touched him, and as they padd no heed to his warning whistle he pulled the airbrake and sent his fireman ahead.

In a few minutes the fireman came back with a terrified face. There had been a landsilde, and just beyond the cut the track was covered with rocks. It seemed certain that if the train had gone on at full speed in the blinding snow it would have been impossible to stop in time to escape disaster.

In the absolute sense the incident was providential—as everything is—but circumstantially the passengers on that railway train owed their safety, if not their lives, to an engineer who was too tender hearted to kill a sheep and her lambs.

Youth's Companion.

Dutch Rule In Java.

The natives of Java resemble very much in character the natives of the Philippines. It is therefore interesting to know how the Dutch have succeeded so well in governing them. A Dutch official thus explains the method:
"We pay the native priests, we support a large native police force, and we rule by the hands and mouths of the natives; but all the time we have our own people on guard, and no important move is made without our consent. Thus the people and their chiefs are contented and happy, and we keep them so by maintaining a condition more faverable than they could hope to maintain themselves."

Company J.

"Doesn't it strike you as peculiar," said the cheerful idiot, who knows everything, "that in the designation of the 19 companies composing a regiment the letter 'J' should be omitted. The companies are lettered through' M' in each regiment, but nowhere can Company J be found."

"It does seem strange," replied the boarding house philosopher. "How do you account for it?"

"I expect it's because 'J' stands for 'Jonah,' "said the C. I. "Uncle Sam wants no 'Jonahs' in his regiments."—New Orleans Times-Democrat. New Orleans Times-Democrat
