St. Alfred's school cool, man

Voting day at St. Alfred's Catholic School did not run smoothly.

Five windows were broken in the school building over the weekend, and this did not add to the comfort of the workers. 1,200 adults were registered at this polling station, divided among six polling booths.

By 8 p.m., when the polls officially closed, the booth with the high record for votes received counted only 10 votes out of a possible 210. One polling booth had no listed voters show up at all. As the men elected Dec. 2 will be administering a budget of $55,000,000 per year, by far the largest portion of our municipal taxes, it certainly is to be hoped that the poor turnout of voters at St. Alfred's Catholic School was not a true picture of the voting for the rest of our area.
