

A Millionaire; Countess Westleigh.

CHAPTER IV. (Concluded.)

"Don't you find this an awfully rough place in the winter—the depth of winter?" he asked, conscious of a desire to hear her speak.

"No," she replied, succinctly; "but I don't remember—" She stopped.

"You could not ride," she said, with quiet and assured conviction. "You are weak still. No, I watched you walk across the beach."

"And you live here, all alone, you two?" he said. "Monarchs of all you survey," as Robinson Crusoe would say.

"I suppose there are no schools here!" said Vane, trying to speak as if her ignorance were rather a credit to her than otherwise, and by no means extraordinary.

A Paris Chemist Has Discovered How to Grow Hair.

In Paris the ladies have entirely abandoned wearing hats, which is due entirely to this new discovery. It has been proven that Henna leaves contain the ingredients that will positively grow hair.

"Ninety-eight St. James' Street," she repeated.

"Do you think you can remember it?" he said, with a smile.

"I never forget what I hear," she said, "or what I see—never. Is that because I can not read or write?"

"Very likely," said Vane. "And now I want to ask you a question. Miss Nora. Now will you tell me whom you took me for the other night?"

"No one could have been kinder or more hospitable," he went on. "I can't tell you how grateful I am. I consider you saved my life—" as ignor—I know very little more about it than you do, Miss Nora. What's it matter? For instance, you seem very happy. I heard you singing away like a bird. I don't often hear other girls sing like that."

In all his life he had never imagined such an experience, such a human being as this.

"That's right," said Vane; "and a pretty big city, with three, four millions—I don't know quite how many—people in it."

"No," he said. "It's a long way from the sea; but a river runs thro' it. But they don't fish in it to any extent, and then only for pleasure. There are thousands of houses and streets—miles of them—and we all live jammed together, with scarcely enough air to breathe, and that, for the most part, thick with smoke."

Her glorious eyes expanded with grave, delicious innocence.

"I wonder you do not die," she murmured in her musical voice.

"So do I, now I come to think of it," said Vane, with his short laugh.

He nodded.

not fond of mental exercise or puzzles of any kind, so he gave up the conundrum in his happy-go-lucky fashion as they entered the cottage.

"I know no one, see no one, but the fishermen and the country people who come sometimes to buy our fish," she said, with a grave reserve.

Fashions and Fads.

At this moment do not trim your hat with a high-standing feather effect and alginate or paradise. They are not in fashion's favor.

High in favor are the kimono-shaped wraps, or any shape which can be wrapped and folded round the body and held together in front.

One simply must have a vest. If you cannot button one around you in time-waistcoat fashion, you must attach a vest effect to your neckwear.

Petticoats are doing their best to restore themselves to favor. One of the prettiest and newest is the crepe de chine, finished at the bottom with two ruffles of shadow lace, put on in festoon fashion.

Serge comes serenely to the front with great success. It is washable, comes in convenient widths and in checks, shadow stripes or plain colors. It is especially adaptable for the college girl.

This fall we will use the clinging draperies; the wide belt, with its butterfly bows and draped and hanging pines, the kimono line for bodices and wraps and the wonderful colorings and embroideries of the orient.

Twice Proven Cure for Nerves

Irritable, Hysterical, Sleepless, Dr. Chase's Nerve Food Restores Health.

There is a message in this letter for thousands of women who are suffering from broken-down nervous systems. Sleepless nights, much irritability over little things, spells of dizziness and nervous sick headaches are among the symptoms.
