Side Talks by Ruth Cameron

WHEN YOU ARE A GRANDMOTHER

RUTH CAMERON

"Well, there's one thing," said the Authorman as he laid down the paper in which he had been reading the trade union discussion, deciding that the strike which was evidently to cut short his supply of cigars, "We're all of us, high and low, rich and poor, forcibly learning more in these three years about economics than we'd have learned in two lifetimes of ordinary life."

It's true, isn't it? And in how many other ways there is more being crowded into these few years than would be crowded into many "a cycle of Cathay."

And then they will ask her about the Great War—with we dare at least to hope, the curiosity of children to whom war is something definitely archaic. And she will tell of the dreadful thrill of those first days when we heard that England had gone in, and of the latter days when our own (and perhaps her own) boys marched off to war. When I was a child I used to read on the fire card the call 7-7-7 and wished that some day I might hear that call. I've heard it, and I'm cured of that wish.

She Will Tell of the Days When Men Voted. And of course when her granddaughters come back from the polls some day they will say curiously to her, "It doesn't really seem possible that men did all the voting once," and she will tell them of those days, and of the bitter feeling against "short haired" women who had this strange desire to help make the laws they lived under, and of her own first vote.

These are just a few of the things that mythical grandmothers will be able to tell her grandchildren. These be crowded times—she has 20 years more to live before her grandchildren will be of the age to talk much about such things. Who knows but in those 20 years there may be other changes even greater! No, it does not seem possible. But neither did all the things that have happened in the last 20 years.

Cashin Will Come Back. Winter is Coming. Already the chilly days of Autumn are here, and you should not risk the chance of catching cold in a house where the fires die out, or where a great delay of time is necessary to start them on a frosty morning. A little Gas Heater, Gas Grate, or steam radiator will furnish you with just as much heat as you require, and just as little, by simply turning a tap.

We have Radiant Fires, Chili-Chasers, Set-In-Grates, Steam Radiators, and appliances to suit all requirements of the Home.

Just Folks

Edgar A. Guest

A PIECE.

Grant to me this: The strength to do my duty. And smiles of love to welcome my return. Open my eyes to all the world's bright beauty. Teach me to make the most of what I earn.

What though I toil, let me be brave and cheerful. Glad there are tasks that I am called to do.

Let love of life keep me from being fearful. And love of truth keep me from deeds untrue.

I would not dwell too much on cares that fret me. Nor magnify through selfish eyes my woes.

When failures come and trivial wrongs let me rejoice that I can bear such blows.

Keep me from envy and the jealous madness. What blinds men's eyes to joy that they possess.

And makes them think another's hour of gladness. Is robbing them of fortune and success.

Through every day and every hour that passes, Let me press forward, glad to take Looking at life through clear not murky glasses.

And, come what may, finding it good to live.

LONG AGO.

The dear old times of long ago seem far away and hazy, the good old times we used to know, before the world went crazy. We trotted to our divers tasks, contented early risers, and put our savings down in casks, nor fretted over Kaisers.

We followed then the baseball games, and thrashed them over nightly, and to the movies took our dames, when lights were glowing brightly. Ah, life was then serene and sweet, a pleasant, cheerful cycle; and no one had it in for Pete, or cursed the name of Michael. But now our rages never stop, we're hot beneath our collars; if for an hour I cease to yawn, some other fellow hollers. Each voter packs around a brick, and brazen knucks we carry, we take a fall from Tom to Dick, and throw some rocks at Harry. We don't know why our heads are sore, we don't know why we're rattled, but still we rant and walk the floor, as when the nations battled. Oh, for the happy golden days, when we sat round and twittered, and talked of whiskers we could raise, and not a heart embittered. Oh, for the by-gone peaceful nights, when, done with daily labors, we smoked our pipes and flew our kites, I like sane and kindly neighbors.

Who's Who

AND WHY IN NEWFOUNDLAND AND CANADA—1919-20.

"Who's Who and Why" is designed to provide a record of the men and women who in one capacity or another are contributing to the building up of Canada and Newfoundland.

In the brief account of their career in these pages their relation is shown to the outstanding events of the history of the sister dominions, and the book, therefore, has a value for the historian quite beyond its use as a current work of reference. Included also are portraits of persons dealt with in the biographical sketches, thus adding to the permanent value of the book. Only a few copies on sale.
