The choir of the First Congrega-tional Church, assisted by members of New St. James' choir, gave, on Thurs. day evening, a sacred concert and cantata in St. Paul's Presbyterian Church, West London. The attendance was good and the concert much appreciated by all present. The first part was the cantata, "Under the Palms," illustrating the Jewish feast of taber nacles, after the captivity, and written to be rendered by the average chofr, rather than by a few picked voices. The solos, duets, quartettes and choruses were well rendered by the different singers. The miscellaneous part was also splendidly given by one and all. Much credit for the success of the concert was given to Mr. Harold Nixon, a pupil of Mr. Wheeler, and the present organist of the First Congregational Church.

The students do not altogether "scorn delights," though they may "live labort-ous days." In particular, the annual play, revived after a lapse for one ear, has been a great success, and a good combination of profit and pasime to the performers.

Many difficulties were met with at the outset in this matter. Through one mishap and another the date of performance had to be postponed un-til, instead of being put on as usual n January or February, the play had o be given as late as April 11. players were almost all new at the work, and that was a reason why play simple in character and rather short was chosen. At the same time a great departure was made in that he students for the first time essayed the Grand Opera stage. It is needless now to say that the affair was a success, fortune favoring the bold, both financially and in general eclat.
