CORRESPONDENCE

Commends Presence of Mind.
To the Editor of The Advertiser:
Seeing in your paper last night about the drug clerk who saved the baby's life, I would like to see something done in this matter. It is not possible for the citizens to get him the Carnegie medal for efficiency in saving life. I think great credit is due to him. Yours truly,

Did Not Hear Hisses.
To the Editor of The Advertiser:
Allow me a little space in your columns to comment on a subject which is somewhat agitating the minds of a free people at the present time. I refer to the statement made that Mr. McElheran was speaking in the synod on the subject of women in vestries that he was hissed from the gallery. If there was anything of the kind or no, I am not prepared to say, not having heard it although I was present. But that such impudent remarks were made by the speaker were allowed to go unchallenged by the members of the synod is past my understanding and I think instead of a threat to clear the gallery, an order for the speaker to be put out would have been more fitting. In all the years that the synod has met in London, the women in the gallery have never been insulted before, and I can very easily imagine that no self-respecting or right-minded woman will run the risk again. The age of chivalry is indeed dead when men can sit calmly by and hear women so insulted, without a protest. There were some who ventured a hiss or two, but beyond that no objection was made. As for Mr. McElheran's ideas of a "modern woman," as expressed in his letter in Saturday's Free Press, I consider them too vulgar and impudent to take any notice of, and I shall be more than surprised if he does not get called down by some indignant husband, father or brother. I wish to add that if there was any protest from the gallery, while this rampant speaker was on his feet (though I still deny that there was), it was not caused by his opposition to the vote, but that he should dare to turn around and address the gallery, a thing unheard of in any synod in past years, and such an action should have been condemned by all the members present.

Famous for Beauty Of Her Hair

Mrs. Esther Emery Has Hair Which Reaches to Her Knees. Was Once Threatened With Baldness. Tells How She Made New Hair Grow.

"People say I have the most beautiful hair in the world," says Mrs. Esther Emery, now visiting in the city. I don't know about that, but certainly I am proud of my hair, for it has grown so in just twelve short months till now it reaches my knees. Last year it was anything but beautiful. I thought I was growing bald. A year ago my hair was thin and scraggy and coming out at an alarming rate. Little bald spots appeared all over my scalp. I was covered with dandruff and itched like fury all the time. I cannot tell you how many hair tonics I tried to save my hair and make it grow again. Some of them helped by taking out the dandruff for a while, but it came right back again and my hair grew thinner than ever. "My success is no secret, and I think that any man or woman can do the same with their hair if they will persevere as I have done. A friend, knowing my condition, sent me a clipping from the New York Herald, which advised people who were growing bald to use a preparation consisting of 6 ozs. Bay Rum, 2 ozs. Lavender (de Compose) and 1/2 dr. of Menthol Crystals. I got these things from my druggist and mixed them myself. I allowed the preparation to stand several hours before using. Then I applied it each night and morning, rubbing right into my scalp with the finger tips till the skin fairly glowed. The results were immediate. When I combed my hair next morning only a few straggling hairs came away instead of the handful I was accustomed to gather. The dandruff left me this time for good, for I have never seen a speck on my head since. In less than a week tiny little hairs appeared all over my scalp and these grew so rapidly that soon I looked like a different woman. They have kept right on growing until they are as you see them now. A physician has told me that Lavender contains the pure juice of a rare, savoury quality for forcing a growth of hair, and certainly after my own experience I can well believe it. Did I use more than the first treatment? Oh, certainly I am using it today. I go to any drug store and have 8 ozs. put up at a time. It lasts about a month and costs very little. I'm not going to stop, any way, until my hair reaches the floor!"

that phrase in the sense in which I used it, was a tendency to induce young men to enter the army, which was the issue, then.

A Critic Criticized.

According to press reports the apologists for militarism have been surprising themselves in wild extravagance of language within the past few days. The Toronto News of Saturday reports a statement by Major Barker regarding the school of the Toronto Industrial School.

To get the full significance of his remark it must be kept in mind that the Toronto Industrial School is a reformatory for boys. After inspecting the school, the major is alleged to have said that "if these boys were tough" then the tougher they were the better soldiers they would make. There's a tribute to the army for you! But this is mild when compared with the shocking phrenology of the reported utterance of Rev. Major Robinson, in his address at the London camp yesterday. The soldier of today, said Robinson, is a "man of peace," to give his life, like Jesus Christ, the one for the many. Could anything go beyond that speech for blatant irreverence?

The least offensive element of the statement is the absolute disregard of facts in attributing to the average soldier, as the ruling motive of his life and character, a willingness to sacrifice his life in the interests of his fellow-men. No sane man can be induced to go into the army from many motives, most of them entirely common human motives, and not at all divine. There is the desire for social enjoyment, the desire for the admiration of the unthinking, especially of women, and the desire for worshipers of a red coat, the desire to escape from the grinding monotony of the factory or the farm, and other quite ordinary motives.

In the face of the well-known facts how absurd it is for colonels and majors, reverend and lay, to pretend to believe, and to try to make us believe, that the average soldier is a person of exalted character and "self-sacrificing character." There is more heroism and self-sacrifice shown by any one of hundreds of mechanics in London in the performance of their daily labors, ten hours a day, five days in the week, for fifty-two weeks in the year, and year after year working with slavish toil and spending their wages with cheerful self-sacrifice in maintaining a wife and family, than is shown by the average soldier. It is a wonder that the soldiers themselves did not laugh out in the reverend gentleman's face when they heard him attributing to them the possession of such remarkable virtues.

Finally, there are some of us London people who feel like criticizing the good taste of a clergyman who comes from Stratford to Scotland for not turning out on the Lord's Day to contribute to the glorification of a great crowd of quite ordinary individuals, dressed up in uniforms, and incidentally also to the glorification of the speaker who addressed them. Yours,
A PLAIN CITIZEN.

SMITH—COX.

One of the prettiest and most interesting events of the June-wedding season occurred today at the First Presbyterian Church, when the bride and groom, Mr. and Mrs. A. S. Cox, of 524 William street, to Edwin, youngest son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Smith, of Dufferin street, this city, at 2:30 p.m., the wedding of Messrs. T. B. Escott & Co., wholesale merchants.

Rev. Richard Whiting, B.A., pastor of the church, performed the ceremony, which was a most beautiful and impressive one. The bride wore a handsome dress of white tulle and Juliet cap with trimming of pearls, white lace and orange blossoms, complemented by a handsome diamond necklace and diamond center.

The winsome bride looked extremely charming in her gown of ivory duchesse satin, with square court train, and as she proceeded down the aisle, leading her groom, she was greeted by the remarks were heard from the assembled guests. White nixon draped the satin most effectively, being embroidered with seed pearls and adorned with orange blossoms.

striking of the hour, added a solemn note.

Mr. Sellers' rendition of a portion of the coronation music, with cathedral choir effect by Mr. Vivian Reeves, organist of the First Church, was also a most pleasing feature of his excellent concert.

Other numbers rendered were: "March Militaire," "Gigue," "Haguer," "Pavane," "Toccata," "Tandelaus," "Wagner," "T. Angelus," "Sellers," "Mendelssohn's Fourth Sonata," a most difficult number, but rendered by Mr. Sellers with rare technique and beauty; "Toccata" in G major, the Largo and "Hallelujah Chorus," Handel.

Mr. Sellers has just completed an eight months' tour of some 500 cities and large towns in the United States and Canada, and sails this week for England. He completed the engagement of the First Presbyterian Church upon the new organ, stating that it was one of the finest he had played upon on this continent.

During the evening Miss F. Cullis and Mr. George White, rendered two pleasing numbers, being a duet entitled "O For the Wings of a Dove," and a solo by Mr. White, "The Song of the Lark," to the accompaniment of the organ.

The only regret remaining at the close was that the audience hearing Mr. Sellers had not been three times as large.

pantry cooks, coal trimmers and firemen. Speakers who exhorted them, said that the men had been "treated like pigs," poorly fed and overworked. Their quarters were crowded, it was said. Sixteen hours' work a day was not unusual, the sanitary equipment inadequate.

DROPPED DEAD ON THE ROAD

William Evans Was One of the Best Known Farmers in Plympton.

WAS TALKING TO SON

[Special to The Advertiser.]
Forest, June 24.—William Evans, aged 75, one of the best known farmers of Plympton Township, dropped dead today as he was walking down the road with his son, William, to visit an adjoining farm. He was suddenly stricken with an attack of heart failure, and fell over in the roadway, where he lay for some time before being discovered. His wife, who leaves three sons and two daughters, Norman, of Owen Sound; David and William, of Plympton; Mrs. John Watson, of Ravenswood, and Miss Nellie, at home. The funeral arrangements have not been completed pending the arrival of the son from Owen Sound.

Mosquito Bite Caused Death by Poisoning

[Canadian Press.]
Calgary, June 24.—Alfred Evans, a young Englishman, was bitten by a mosquito several days ago, and died from blood-poisoning this morning. The mosquito punctured the skin just between his eyes. Within 48 hours an abscess formed, and the young man was taken to the isolation hospital, finally dying in intense agony.

ACCIDENTAL DROWNING

Wayne Osborne Failed to Jump on Car Ferry as It Was Leaving.

[Special to The Advertiser.]
Port Huron, June 23.—Wayne Osborne, who resides near Ashabula, O., was drowned last evening when he tried to jump from the dock to the boat as the big ferry ferry Bessmer No. 2, was pulling out of the harbor at Conneaut, Wis. He was seen to fall into the water, but it is believed, will have come up under the boat. For two hours efforts were made to recover the body, but all proved unsuccessful.

BARN WAS BURNED

Tramps Blamed For Fire Which Caused Heavy Loss Near Forest.

[Special to The Advertiser.]
Forest, June 24.—The big barn of Neil McGill, in Bonquet, two miles from Forest, was mysteriously destroyed by fire shortly before midnight. The only cause for the blaze is that tramps set the barn on fire. The family had retired and soon after 11 o'clock were awakened by the glare of the flames, which were sweeping through the barn. There was no chance to save anything, and a splendid driving horse, a general purpose horse, many pigs, 20 bushels of grain, the hay and all the wagons and farm implements were completely destroyed. The loss will be fully $3,000. Mr. McGill carries $1,600 insurance in the London Mutual.
