

ENDS HANDICRAFT OF LABRADOR FOLK

enfel Mission Encourages
Black Coast Arts.

All the way from the far Labrador set boxes have arrived in the city containing samples of the handicrafts of the natives made during the bitter winters of long, long nights. Home-made, worn runners and hooked hats express the skill and the wistful desire for what is beautiful, as well as the usefulness of women whose lives, of necessity, must be monotonous and hard. There are knitted goods and bags as well as a weather-vane, door stop, book rack, window wedges and toys to delight the hearts of the kiddies, carved by Labrador "uncles." What would a small boy or girl like? A polar bear on a reindeer dancing on a stick, all the way from the mystic land, where surely Santa Claus lets his reindeer roam at large in summer?

An opportunity will be afforded the London public to see these examples of the art and crafts of the Labrador folk on Wednesday afternoon next in the First Presbyterian Sunday school room, when they will be on display, and also on sale at a tea given by the London branch of the Grenfell mission. The boxes have been sent by the industrial branch of the mission, established some years ago for the purpose of giving the people of Labrador interesting diversion for the long winter evenings, and thereby affording them an opportunity of adding to their very slim incomes through the sale of their work.

Writing to the secretary of the London branch a day or so ago, Miss W. A. Greff, wife of the hero missionary, calling attention to the superior quality of the work sent out this fall over that of some years ago.

Confessions of a Movie Star

CHAPTER 7.—THE VANISHING OF JIMMY ALCOTT

JIMMY ALCOTT was not a principal in the scandal. He was a victim. It came out gradually. Each day there were new details for the gossips.

A teller in his father's bank had absconded with thousands. ALCOTT, Helen, Jimmy's only sister. And the worst of it was that Helen was a bride of a year.

Her husband had managed the ALCOTT quarries, shut down months since. And ALCOTT, senior, was a ruined man. Tompkins had a feeling that Jimmy ought to come to see Mother and me just because he needed sympathy. Every evening I put on a certain blue lacy gown which he admired.

Then came the news of the accident. James S. ALCOTT, senior, had gone over the edge of his biggest quarry in his automobile. And Jimmy ALCOTT was nowhere to be found. Jimmy often drove the big car because his father disliked driving.

Was it an accident? The pond in the quarries was dragged for Jimmy's body. Nobody had seen the young man at the railroad station. Some said he had run away from home.

Others said he hadn't run away—wasn't anything for him to run away from!

Mother and I couldn't think of Jimmy as a coward. His own mother was dead, his sister gone, his father a suicide; eventually, what remained of the ALCOTT property would be sold for the benefit of the bank's creditors.

Plainly, there was nothing for Jimmy to run away from. But wasn't there something for him to come back to?

Well, there was! Very much horrified and hurt!

Such were the visions which dissolved and redissolved under the tepid compresses on my eyelids after I had heard Dick Barnes' voice over the telephone.

I did not tell Mother and I was thinking. It was too silly! And, of course, if Jimmy ALCOTT had come back, we could hear from him soon. He did not know that I was a movie actress, but he certainly would find us, by mail. And if Jimmy ever came back, he would recognize my voice instantly over a phone, just as I would recognize him. And he would tell me so.

The man who had been my good friend was the soul of honesty, of frankness.

Was Dick Barnes, the company's new bad man, as honest as his fine voice led me to hope? Curiosity added interest to the approaching rehearsal. On the appointed day, my eyes being cured, I started for the studios.

I was anxious to be even earlier than usual in order to meet Dick Barnes before our work began, but my new chauffeur made some unnecessary detours, and I arrived late at the studios.

I sent up word to my director, Demaison, to go ahead and get ready to shoot. I would be on the set promptly at 9. There were extras on the set. Extras are expensive. Time was valuable.

I had to hurry, so that I actually forgot that I was going to play opposite Dick Barnes. (To Be Continued.)

Black and White Latest in Umbrellas

(BY MARION HALE.)

NEW YORK, Oct. 23.—This season's umbrellas show the change of fashion in the handles since the small combination sun and rain umbrella, suspended on the wrist by a strap, gave way to bigger proportions last year.

The dress umbrella, such as one carries with a fur coat or a smart wrap, is done with exquisite detail. Even the leather strap with its bakelite ends is handily worked. The handle of the wood stick ending in the stub ferrule, is combined of carved bakelite and wood. The tips are of bakelite. This Franklin Simon umbrella is in all colors.

Black and white are the mode in dress umbrellas—white bakelite upon which black bakelite is applied in designs, being the very latest. Even the stub ferrule is artistically worked out in designs of black and white, while the strap is black leather.

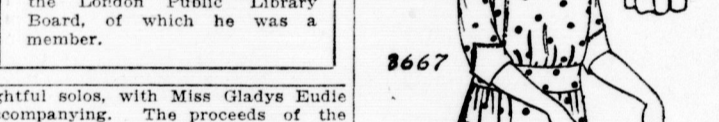

A novelty Franklin Simon umbrella has a vanity case, powder puff and mirror in the top of the handle. The old-fashioned hook umbrella, with amber handle, is still good, and amber ornately carved is also modish. The umbrellas measure 25 inches.

CABBAGE. Take the lid off the kettle when you boil the cabbage. Leaving it on discolors the cabbage.

FOR SPEED. The colder the eggs which you intend to beat, the more quickly they will froth.

USE CHARCOAL. Powdered charcoal is an excellent disinfectant. It quickly absorbs unpleasant odors also.

Mrs. Walter Hungerford received yesterday for the first time since moving to her home in Wellington street.

Mr. Gerald Jordan is home from Appleby School, Oakville, and will spend the week-end with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. D. Jordan.

Mrs. A. E. McKay and Miss Mae Brooks of Coldstream will be in the city next week to attend the Women's Institute convention.

Mrs. Gordon L. Jepson will receive on Wednesday afternoon, Nov. 2, at her residence, 390 Colborne street, and thereafter on the first Wednesday of each month.

Mrs. Richard Cronyn was a tea hostess on Wednesday last, entertaining the members of the gift shop committee of the Croyn Memorial Church, bazaar to be held next week. Final arrangements were made for the booth.

Miss Muriel Hockney, who is to be married next month, received a handsome reading lamp and silver tea service from her fellow-employees at the London Printing and Lithographing Co. The presentation was made by Mr. Alex. Henderson.

Mrs. MacBurney was the hostess of a dinner party on Thursday evening at her home in Richmond street, when she entertained the wedding parties of the Evans-Holliday and Wolf-MacBurney weddings. The table was effectively decorated and covers were laid for sixteen. A theatre party followed.

The choir of Centennial Methodist Church are holding their annual concert on Tuesday evening, Nov. 1st, when music lovers are promised a great treat. The choir will be assisted by Miss Jessie Irving, elocutionist of Hamilton, and Mr. George Carlie, tenor of St. Thomas and London. In addition the program will include several sections by the choir and soloists, Mrs. Hayward.

The Hodge Tuxis Club of the Y. M. C. A. and the Ahmecks Tuxis of Knox Church held an enjoyable masquerade last night at the Institute of Musical Art. The hall was gay with Halloween decorations, and the bright costumes of the guests. A delightful supper was served, the tables being attractive with bright flowers. Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence received the guests, assisted by Messrs. Warner, McTavish, Higgins and Russell.

"Oakhurst School," the annex of the Institute of Musical Art, was a veritable woodland scene last evening, when the pupils held a Halloween party in the form of a masquerade. The school-rooms were transformed into forest nooks by gay autumn foliage, with spooky jack-o'-lanterns peering from the corners. In the centre of one room, showed a huge camp-fire, beside which sat a gypsy telling the future of all who asked. The decorations were due to Miss Peggy Lorne-Evans, Miss Isabel McCrimmon, Miss Betty Farnworth and Miss Lorraine Abbott. Miss Mary Manley, principal of the school, received the guests, assisted by Mrs. Nichol. A delightful supper was served from tables bright with Halloween decorations and autumn flowers.

"SIT BY MY FIRE," "Y" TELLS LONELY

The girl who is a stranger in the city, the young woman who is making her way in the world away from her "ain folk," living in a boarding or rooming-house, is very specially in the minds of the Y. W. C. A. workers, who are arranging the first Sunday afternoon home hour of the season for tomorrow from 4:30 to 5:30 o'clock, at the King street residence, "Lenmore."

There'll be glowing open fires, a very warm welcome, a program provided by the federation of clubs, tea served by the religious education committee of the association, an opportunity of meeting congenial friends. Afterwards, those who wish to do so may linger to chat by the fireside till church time, when new girl acquaintances will be prepared to take them to the church of their denomination or choice.

The "home hours" will be continued through the winter, various church clubs and organizations assisting in making them a success.

A means of cooling the air and increasing its humidity is provided by a new electric fan attachment.

Success attending the work of Miss Anna Cechrill has been all. Already there are vacancies for pupils except for Fridays. Arrangements can be made for lessons on either of these days by 101.

A new term will commence on Nov. 9, and all particulars of fees, terms, etc., may be had by phoning 1101 or writing for a leaflet to the secretary.

WOMEN'S CLUBS

ASKIN STREET MISSION CIRCLE.

The monthly meeting of the Askin Street Mission Circle of Askin Street Methodist Church, was held at the home of Miss Miriam Pearson, Evergreen avenue, this week. Mrs. H. Childs gave a very interesting address on "The Life of the Hindu Children." Little talks were also given by various members of the circle on the missionary work in foreign fields. Miss Adelaide Orchard gave several delightful piano solos. After the meeting a dainty supper was served.

HELD MASQUERADE.
A jolly masquerade was given at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Chris. Butterworth, Hamilton road, by the members of the Hamilton Road Presbyterian Choir and Young People. The house was effectively decorated with Halloween colors, and jack-o'-lanterns were to be seen everywhere. The costumes were clever and original, the prizes being carried off by Mr. "Scoop" Jackson, who dressed as Mary Pickford, and Mrs. Christianson, as Sherlock Holmes. The evening was delightful. The program was given, several solos being sung by Mrs. Herb Barrows, and readings by Mrs. Fallow.

HALLOWEEN BAZAAR.
A very successful bazaar was held in the kindergarten of the Simcoe Street School yesterday afternoon, when the mothers' club of that school raised a large sum of money towards their fund for the Sick Children's Hospital. The costumes were very attractive, with Halloween decorations, the various booths being decked with pumpkins and gay streamers. Delightful music was supplied during the afternoon by an orchestra. Mrs. E. Dayton was general convener. Mrs. John Curran was in charge of the candy counter. Mrs. J. Coyle of the home-made cooking. Mrs. Edworthy of the fancywork booth. Mrs. W. Hortley of the aprons. Mrs. J. Bernhart of the hankies. Mrs. J. Mitchell of the ice cream counter and Mrs. W. Ford of the tea-room.

ECHO CLUB CELEBRATES.
The Echo Club of the Y. W. C. A., under the direction of Miss Edith Plewes, is planning a very special Halloween banquet for Monday evening.

ST. JAMES L. A. AND CHOIR.
A supper and concert will be given by the Ladies' Aid and choir of the New St. James' Presbyterian Church on the evening of Nov. 1. The choir will be assisted with their program by the Harmonic Male Quartet, also by Mr. Chas. Jolley. Mr. Keith McDonald, Miss Stella Doan, Miss M. Corbin of Toronto. Solos will be given by Mrs. S. Schofield, Mr. Frank McCutcheon. Mr. G. L. Winterbottom will be the musical director. Supper will be served by the Ladies' Aid from 6 to 8:30. It is expected that there will be a large attendance.

UNION PRESIDENT OFFICIATES.
Mrs. Rose, president of the Union

APPOINTED A COMMITTEE.
It was decided at a special meeting yesterday, held to discuss the founding of a hostel for the homeless, unemployed, aged or convalescent, who have no place to go after leaving the hospitals, that a committee be appointed to present the case before the Social Service Council at their next meeting. This committee will obtain all the data necessary from the various institutions, such as under what conditions patients are admitted to these homes. In the meantime, the Convalescent Home on a period of not more than three weeks any cases that may come up. Mrs. Joseph Marshall, who was in the chair, was appointed by the Local Council of Women last week to call this meeting, at which various institutions were represented.

HOLD MUSICAL AND TEA.
The musical and tea given by the Soldiers' Wives' League yesterday afternoon was a decided success. At the opening the members stood in silence in memory of the late Lady Beck, who was honorary president of the league. The rooms were most attractive with brilliant colored autumn foliage, the table being most effectively decked with baby's mums and snapdragons. The general convener of the affair was Mrs. A. Campbell. The tea room was in charge of Mrs. J. E. Wylie, with Mrs. H. Hale, Mrs. Becher and Mrs. E. H. Young pouring. Mrs. Cameron Wilson, Mrs. W. G. Coles and Mrs. Archie Becher invited to the tea room, while Mrs. Gordon Edgewood, Miss Ora White, Mrs. Sid Rankin, Mrs. Adams and Mrs. Cunliffe assisted in serving. An attractive musical program was arranged by Mrs. McKay, those taking part were Miss Abbott, Miss Jones and Mrs. Arthur Chapman, who gave delightful solos, with Miss Gladys Eudie accompanying. The proceeds of the sale will go towards the general funds and relief work.

RECEIVES A DONATION.
The secretary of the Women's Christian Association received from the executors of the will of the late Miss Annie Meredith the generous gift of $400. The association is very grateful for this donation, $200 of which is to go to the Victoria Home, and $200 to the Aged People's Home.

ADVENTURES OF THE TWINS.
THE DETOUR SIGN
[By Olive Roberts Barton.]

So Nick made a detour sign and hung it on the trunk of a tall seaweed tree.

FLATTY FLOUNDER said he was going to sleep, and he did. He lay over on one of his little white sides and closed his eyes, although you could only see one of them, the one on top. That was the last thing he would and did say, and the fairman and the Twins might just as well have tried to get the Sphinx to talk as that lazy flounder boy. And dear knows, the Sphinx never did talk, and it isn't going to begin now!

The three of them stood by, looking and looking and wondering what to do. Curly, the sea-horse, said he was too disgusted for words, and I suppose the rest were too.

Everywhere around, the fishes, crabs, lobsters and all kinds of Wigglefin people were waiting for a chance to get by. The Cross Roads were very narrow, what with rocks and seaweed and everything. And dear knows, the Sphinx never did talk, and it isn't going to begin now!

But would they? Wasn't anyone of them likely to stop and eat up Flatty quicker 'n' Mr. Frog can gobble up Buddy Blue Bottle?

"Well, well," sighed Cap'n Penny-winkle finally. "Nick, you'll have to hang up a detour sign and make 'em all go 'round. This fellow is here to stay. I suppose we may as well pull the covers up and let him alone."

So Nick made a detour sign and hung it on the trunk of a tall seaweed tree, where everyone could see, and the Wigglefin people all moved off very reluctantly in that direction. It was just as though Johnny Jones had taken a notion to rest his tired little bones right in the middle of traffic at the corner of Main and State streets, where Forty-second street crosses Fifth avenue, only worse, for in that case the traffic policeman could call a patrol wagon and have Johnny hauled off to his own house and put to bed properly. Nobody could pick Flatty up. He was too slippery!
