From THE DAILY COLONIST. May 31. COURT OF ASSIZE.

The Jury Decide That Mat. Matson Did Not Fire His Rival's House.

Presentment of Grand Jury Recommends Better Fire Protection for Jubilee Hospital.

The grand jury submitted their present ment at the assizes yesterday, and were discharged by Mr. Justice Drake who presided. The presentment read: To His Lordship Mr. Justice Drake:

We, the grand jury, wish to report that in accordance with the charge from the bench, we visited the provincial jail, and property came into the cabin. The day found everything in perfect order, the cells after though, while drinking with the other found everything in perfect order, the cells and all affairs being neat and clean. We donald, told him it came from the outer cannot speak too highly of Warden John, who showed us every courtesy and every thing in connection with the institution.

From there we went to the Jubilee hospital, and were received by the house nonpital, and were received by the house surgeon, Dr. Richardson, and shown over the building. Everything was in the ubmost order and neatness with regard to each department, but we wish to point out that in our opinion the drainage is not at all what it should be, and we would like to bring it to the notice of the authorities, and hope that they will see their way to give their immediate attention to a matter of such vital importance to the general public. More especially to the drain running along the sidewalk on Cadboro Bay road. Also we would like to draw your attention to the bad state of drainage at the present time in other parts of the city. We noticed and must point out that the system for putting out fires in the hospital is very crude. At present they have to rely simply on buckets. We are of opinion that something should be done to prevent what would be a very serious accident.

We would also counsel the necessity o enforcing the law in the case of the Chinese lotteries; we are informed that a great many persons frequent the different res in many cases losing more than they can afford. A very bad feature is the number of youths who attend. We hope the proper authorities will take steps to eradicate the evil.

JOHN. J. DOWNEY,

The Matson arson case was proceeded with and occupied most of the day.

Mat Matson was accused of setting fire on January 2 to the house occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Smith on Haughton street, Matson being the unsuccessful rival of Smith for the hand of Mrs. Hunter, a widow, whom Smith married on New Year's eve.

Mr. A. G. Smith appeared for the Crown, and Mr. P. S. Lampman for the defence. John Kelly Smith, the husband, said that a couple of weeks previous to his marriage with Mrs. Hunter he met the accused in the him names, witness, at the request of Mrs. Hunter, ran Matson out of the house and told him he was sick of him and never to show up there again, emphasizing his remarks with a kick. The accused then threatened. "I'll fix you. You'll never live in this house." At other times the accused had called him uncomplimentary names and used similar remarks. On the evening of the marriage there were feativities inside the house and, as the wit-

severe cross-examination, asking him whether he and his wife were in the habit of getting drunk and fighting; witness ac-mitted he got drunk occasionally, but re-fused to answer the other questions; he had lived in San Francisco, but never told any-one he had been the "king of the Knob Hill hoodlums there."

Mrs. Smith testified that she had seen Matson outside the house near the well the evening before the wedding. She had gone out to get some water; Matson put his head into the well and she pulled him out for fear he would throw himself it. She concluded that the prisoner had a number of times prowled round the house as he had told her what had gone on in the house. Three months before she married Smith, Mateon had said he would set fire to her house if she married another man. The night of the fire she woke up about 11 o'clock and heard a noise of coal oil tins in the woodshed; an hour later she woke again and saw the house was afire. A few nights before Matson had told her he would "fix" Smith. She had once said that she would like to see Matson get off as he had been a better husband to her than Smith. Smith got angry when he heard this and took up the gun and she went into the yard; Smith then smashed up some things in the house.

F. Larsen swore that Masson told Mrs. Hunter that if she married another man they would not stay long in that house. In cross-examination witness stated that this was said good humoredly as in a joke and was before Mrs. Hunter knew Smith. Sergeant Hawton told of going to Matson's house after midnight on the night of the fire and finding a pair of shoes wet and muddy.

Matson said he had not worn those boots for two days, and showed a pair of perfectly dry boots that he said he had worn that were each sentenced to five years in the penitentiary. Murphy preferred to wait for the assizes.

Mr. A. G. Smith appeared for the Crown, the prisoner conducting his own defence.
The goods were identified by Mr. R. Seabrook, and the breaking open of the ware-house and abstraction of the goods proved. Constables Macdonald and Mouat gave evidence as to finding the goods stowed away in a cabin in which the prisoner was.

The prisoner gave evidence in his own behalf, stating that he did not know how the men in the cabin, one of them, named Mac-

The jury brought in a verdict of guilty and the prisoner was at once sentenced to four years in the penitentiary. The court will sit this morning at halfpast nine.

two days, and showed a pair of perfectly dry boots that he said he had worn that day. The clothes in the room were dry.

For the defence John Laurie and Charles Bamfield, two boys, stated that they were out skating on the night of the fire and passing Smith's house about the o'clock they heard a noise going on in the house.

Mrs. Josephine Larsen stated that after the fire Smith had wanted her to give evidence to the effect that she had heard Marken for say he would set the house after if Mrs. Hunter married Smith. Smith ried to convince witness she had heard it, and said the would be well paid for giving evidence.

"Under this system the advantages of town life are blended to a very considerable degree with the charms of rural existence.
It is a system full of delightful possibilities. The Mormons have realized its substantial advantages in neighborhood association; but their model will be much improved by many colonies of more recent establishment. Farm life under the old conditions has involved isolation. The hunger for human sympathy and company has driven thouscity populations. There is no reason why villages patterned after those of Uta should not have a social life and an out. 160 people, and goes into the causes and ward beauty quite as pleasing as, for in-stance, the suburbs of Boston. There the architecture seems almost uniformly pleasng. Attractive lawns, with trees, vines and flowers, are everywhere. People of small means will be able to surround themselves

"It will be seen that the farm-village had population in northern Utah. "Another important feature in the Mormon system relates to the ownership of water. The canals were built by the common labor of the settlers and practically without the use of money. Each farmer performed work in proportion to the amount of land he desired to irrigate. Companies were formed and stock issued on this basis. Repairs were kept up in the same way. No single item in the long list of natural resources which Brigham Young found on entering the territory offered so good a chance for a safe speculation as the water in the mountain streams. It was water in the mountain streams. It was absolutely essential to existence, and a shrewd speculator might have taken possession of it at that time and levied perpetual tribute upon the agricultural industry. But the same principle which had led him to frown upon speculation and so insist upon a small farm unit and universal landownership made it a location account. landownership made it a logical necessity to prevent any monopoly in the control of the water supply. And here, as in other vital matters, the far-sighted leader established a precedent of the highest importance in the development of the institutions of Arid America.

Hundred and Sixty Lives Lost in the Wreck of the Steamer.

Indescribable Scenes About the Life Boats Among Panic Stricken Passengers.

CITY OF MEXICO, May 30. - Only a meagre telegram has been received here from the Colina wreck. At 10 o'clock last night a correspondent received a message from the Pacific Mail agent at Manzanillo saying that the number lost is 160, and the saved only 22. Telegrams say that it is quite impossible for the agent to get a list of either those saved or lost.

Colima, Mex., May 30.-A messenger from Mansanillo arrived this morning at l o'clock with official information for the governor of Colima regarding the Colina disaster. The report laments the loss of details of the wreck. Seventy-five miles below San Blas a hurricane was en-countered and it was debated whether or not the ship should attempt to gain partial shelter in the shallow and treacherwas felt to go through the ship. The captain ordered a slight change in the course and gave other directions, which were obeyed. In a very few seconds the keel lightly grounded on a rock and there was at once great excitement among the officers and crew, and fear on the part of the passengers on deck. In less than ten seconds, the great ship crunched on an unknown reef, and a shudder ran through her hull from bow to stern. Passengers sprang from their berths and ran out upon the decks, screaming and praying in a paroxysm of fear.

The wind howled, and a dense fog hung over the ship as she was tossed by the surges and began to pound herself to pieces on the rocks. She rose and fell three times, and then a crash was heard, followed by silence for about a quarter of a minute atience for about a quarter of a minute, during which time only loud sobbing was heard and muffled prayers. "Man the boats," trumpeted the captain. After a short interval, in which another crash was heard below the water, which had avaniously hear and the boats, which had previously been made ready, were launched. Within three minutes from the first crash the ship began to reel, to settle and sink in its free hinder part. The scenes about the life boats were indescribable. The panic stricken passengers and crew struggled for first place, although to the credit of the crew most of them gave their main attention to saving passengers. A number of children were on the passenger list, and one of them was pitched overboard by a frenzied mother, who aimed for one of the life boats while still on the davits. A woman of evident wealth and refinement among the passengers, whose name is thought to be Broslin, or Crosslin, displayed thought to be Broslin, or Crosslin, displayed remarkable presence of mind, and during the most trying moments passed among the frenzied throng exhorting the people to keep quiet, and taking particular care of the women and children. Some passengers, not willing to await the chance of a place in the boats, seized the life belts, and boldly cast themselves into the seas to their universal ate, as they were tossed lifely the waves, or were dashed agains Quebec. They asked that arrangements be made for the cold storage of butter in transit. In reply Mr. Angers stated that the government, through Prof. Robertson, had arranged that the Canadian Pacific railway and the Grand Trunk railway shall place refrigerator cars at the disposal of the butter trade, and that there shall be a fortinghtly service by the Allan line from Montreal in cold storage.—Canadian Grocer.

A mind reader was showing off before a party of Chicago men. "Can you read an last of these Catholic captains.

party of Chicago men. "Can you read an alderman's mind and find out how much money he got for his last vote?" asked one of the spectators. "Certainly," replied the mind reader with a smile. "All right; try it on my friend here," indicating an alderman became very red in the face, looked at the mind reader distrustfully, murmured something about his friend being "too gay," and then retreated.

The Dutch are not fond of lazy people, and they have a very good way of curing persons who can but won't work. If a pauper who is able to work refuses to do so they put him into a cistern, to which a pump is attached, and turn on a stream of water. This stream flows into the cistern just slow enough to enable the lazy person by lively pumping to keep the water from getting up over his head.

Spring Medicine

Is so important that you should be sure to get THE BEST. Hood's Sarsaparilla has proven its unequalled merit by its thousands of remarkable cures, and the fact that it has a larger cale than the same to store the same to same the same to store the same to same the same that same the same the same the same that same the same the same the same that same the same that same the same the same that same the same the same that same the the fact that it has a larger sale than have to stop when going up-stairs on any other sarsaparilla or blood purifier shows the great confidence the people have in it. In fact it is the spring Medicine. It cures all blood Hood's Sarsaparilla.
