A WOMAN'S LATE CONFESSION

A Maine Woman Who Sent Man to Jail For Stealing Now Confesses

Augusta, Me., Oct. 18.—The following remarkable letter will play a part in the hearing to-day before the Governor and council on the petition of Wm. H. Eldridge, of Anagnance, N. B., for a pardon:

"Howland, Me., July 5, 1912.—To Mr. Wm. H. Eldridge: I will write you a few lines. I am sick, and the doctor says that I can't get well again, so I will say that you are not guilty of the crime which you are in prison for. I was hired to help put a job on you to get you out of town. I did not lose my money at all, but they got me to swear that you robbed me of $85. I am sorry for you, but I hope that you will not hold a bad feeling against me. I ask you to forgive me for doing this, wrong thing. I will say that you ought to be let out to go home to your family. Well, I have told you all. I ask you to forgive me. You know that I am the one who sent you there. Signed Mrs. Ellen Lee, Howland, Maine."

Mrs. Lee died later in the month, a short time after the letter was written. Eldridge has served two years and eight months of a four year sentence in the state prison on a charge of robbing Mrs. Lee of $85 at the point of a rifle, Oct. 21, 1909.

The petition is signed by W. H. McKay and forty-three other residents of Edinburgh and Passadumkeag. Eldridge has a wife and children living in destitute circumstances in Anagnance, N. B.

IN the desert of Western Australia, there are old night wells—springs that are dry by day, but full of water at night. It is supposed the vein of water is contained between thin layers of rock. The rock expands under heat and shut out the water. It contracts at night and allows the water to come to the surface.

If you have young children you have perhaps noticed that disorders of the stomach are their most common ailment. To correct this you will find Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets excellent. They are easy and pleasant to take, and mild and gentle in effect. For sale by all druggists.

CREATE A SCENE IN HOUSE OF COMMONS

Remarkable Demonstration by Angry Landlords

London, Oct. 22.—Terrible as the fascination of the war in the Balkans is, we in England during the past week have been absorbed with our own tremendous conflict.

This conflict received additional impetus and enormously increased bitterness owing to the violent scene between Councillor Lloyd George and the Unionist landlords in the House of Commons Tuesday night.

Challenged as to private committee which was appointed and financed by Lloyd George and the other advanced land reformers to inquire into land conditions in England, Lloyd George refused peremptorily to promise that the names of witnesses should be revealed to the landlords. The obvious reason for this refusal is that the inquiry deals largely with the wholesale intimidation exercised by the landlords over all the rural land holders and that unless the witnesses to this tyranny are protected from the landlords, every one would refuse information lest as a marked man, he could be ruined by the landlords' party.

When the Unionists discovered that Lloyd George would not thus play into their hands they burst into a tornado of hissing, yelling, continuously for minutes at a time, threw insults at Lloyd George, drowned his voice every time he attempted to speak and when he had defied and beaten them after a quarter of an hour's fierce struggle, took their revenge by hissing and hooting him as he left the chamber—an unprecedented form of outburst in the annals of the House of Commons.

This terrible outburst took place too late at night to receive full record in the next morning London papers, but the story gradually reached them, and the public, and the scene now is realized as the great turning point in the history both in the immediate and remote future of English politics.

The Liberal papers first noted the remarkable contrast between the comparative tranquility of the Unionists in fighting Home Rule and their ebullient passion when they were assailing Lloyd George. This leads to the conclusion that what really interests and excites the English Unionists is not home rule for Ireland but their own threatened monopoly of land in England and their century old domination of the rural England.

The scene also justifies Lloyd George's skilful strategy, which by the starting of the land campaign, gives the British Radicals a new great programme, which may sweep the country in the next election and submerge in interest all the other topics, including the Home Rule Bill.

Minimized Ice Danger
On the steamship Royal Edward, from Bristol, was Dr. Meyer Copland, bacteriologist of public health in the University of Leeds, Eng. Dr. Copland made the voyage for the purpose of testing an apparatus he has invented as an aid to navigators in fog and haze and for detecting the presence of icebergs. His instrument "noises" the presence of icebergs three miles and a half away and sounded an alarm on three occasions in the vicinity of ice.

FORMER ARMY CHAPLAIN PRAISES OCEAN LIMITED

South African Veteran Declares it is The Best on The Continent.

Moncton, N.B. Oct. 23.—Rev. W. G. Lane one of the Chaplains to the First Canadian Contingent to South Africa, and now pastor of the Wesley Memorial church in this city, has just returned after an extended trip to the Western States, and has this to say in comparison of American and Canadian railroads. "The 'Ocean Limited' was by far the best equipped and most comfortable train we came across in our travels and we travelled on the crack trains of some of the biggest of the American railroads. We came across nothing that could beat, or even equal, either in equipment or comfortable riding qualities the famous express of the Intercolonial. People who return from the States and talk of the superiority of the American roads over that of the Canadian Government either do not know what they are talking about or else are deliberately seeking to belittle the railroads of Canada."
