"I know it, mother. But I thought if Santa Claus didn't bring me any, why, I'd buy them myself, see?" Mrs. Linn nodded.

"I expect he might forget folks, like the Pludes, who live on the top floor," suggested Archie.

"He might, dear." Archie was very thoughtful all the evening, and before he went to bed he counted over the little store money he had put away. There was 50 cents that couldn't be touched-he had saved it for his mother's Christmas giftchiefs and a pair of warm gloves; he had picked them out at Bressen's store on the corner. And there was more money in his little boxdimes and pennies and nickels saved for many months to buy the coveted skates - $1.15. Twenty cents le Counted Over the Little Store of more, and then if Santa Claus forgot him or there were not skates enough to go around-why, he could buy a pair for himself. And then came the thought of the Plude family on the top floor. There were so many little Pludes, and they were quite poor. Mr. Plude was ill in the hospital, and Mrs. Plude was worn out with worry and hard work. What would they do if Santa Claus didn't come-if he forgot the Plude family? The next day was Christmas eve, and Mrs. Linn noticed that Archie was quite serious. "What is the matter, dear?" she asked him after they had eaten their supper.

"Mother, do you mind if I spend my skate money for something else?" he asked.

"But, dear, you want the skates so badly," she objected. He nodded. "I know it, mother; but, you see, if I am disappointed there is only one of me to feel sorry, but there are so many of the Pludes, and they are all so little they will feel so sorry."

"What is it you want to do?" she smiled at him.

"I thought maybe—if Santa Claus forgot the Pludes I'd make believe I was Santa. I'm sure he wouldn't care and I'd take my money and buy some things for them. Perhaps you'd go, too, mother, and help me choose at the ten cent store." "Of course I'll help you, son," said Mrs. Linn, for she was very proud of her little boy. Mrs. Linn said no more just then, but later in the day when Archie's Sunday school teacher came to call she told Miss Smith about Archie's self sacri-

That evening Archie and his mother went shopping in the ten cent store. They found presents for all the little Pludes, and Archie laughed and chuckled when his mother insisted on calling him Santa Claus.

That night after all the little Pludes were fast asleep Mrs. Plude let Archie into the room, and together they filled the poor little stockings hanging in a row over the stove.

"It's all I can do to earn money for a bit of coal and food," sighed Mrs. Plude as she kissed Archie good night, "and you should sleep sweetly, my boy, because of the happiness you're bringing to my little ones.

When Archie awoke on Christmas morning he looked across the room to the mantelpiece where his stocking hung.

A pair of skates! Yes, indeed; such a bright and shining pair—and a red sled, a real flier! Archie shouted for joy as he jumped out of bed. There were a woolen cap and a pair of mit-tens and some candy. "Gee!" cried Archie. "Santa Claus didn't forget me after all!"

Mrs. Linn smiled at his delight. She was glad that she had allowed Miss Smith, the Sunday school teacher, to give Archie the skates and sled.

Nothing Helped Him Until He Took

ALBERT VARNER Buckingham, Que., May 3rd, 1915. For seven years, I suffered terribly from Severe Headaches and Indigestion. I had belching gas from the stomach, bitter stuff would come up into my mouth after eating, while at times I had nausea and vomiting, and had chronic Constipation. I went to several doctors and wrote to a specialist in Boston but without benefit. I tried many remedies but nothing did me good. Finally, a friend advised "Fruit-a-tives". I took this grand fruit medicine and it made me well. I am grateful to "Fruit-atives", and to everyone who has miserable health with Constipation and Indigestion and Bad Stomach, I say take "Fruit-a-tives", and you will get well".
