

CHICAGO MARKET.

WHEAT IRREGULAR.

CORN STEADY—PROVISIONS WEAKER.

TRANSACTIONS SMALL.

Chicago, July 16.

Though wheat showed a firm front at the opening, it ruled erratic all day. July and August were steady but only very slight business was done in them. September was the active month and varied little in point of price, but changed frequently from strong to weak and vice versa. Its opening price proved to be the strongest of the day. December followed it in every particular.

Corn has been strong and active and for a change has led the market, having shown great strength. September has been the active month and promises to remain an interesting issue for the next six weeks.

High prices were some time ago prophesied for it, but the past couple of months have proved weak ones. On quick advances it should be sold for a scalp, and quick profits accepted; there is nothing special to cause any great advance in it yet.
