

of a few to serve as types of that vast number of our brethren who unhesitatingly laid aside their practice, left the comforts of their homes for the hardships of a soldier's life and braved the dangers of the battlefield to find in so many instances a hero's grave in Flander's Fields.

"With generous hands they paid the price
Unconscious of the cost;
But we must gauge the sacrifice,
By all that they have lost."

"The joy of young, adventurous ways,
Of keen and undimmed sight;
The eager tramp through sunny days,
The dreamless sleep of night."

"No lavish love of future years,
No passionate regret,
No gift of sacrifice or tears,
Can ever pay the debt."

The Historian then mentions the following: Major-General Malcolm S. Mercer, C.B.; Lieut. Matthew M. Wilson; Lieut.-Colonels George T. Denison, Jr., Frederick H. Hopkins, A. A. Miller, Samuel S. Sharpe, D.S.O.; Majors Jeffrey Bull, James M. Langstaff, Roderick W. MacLennan, Charles A. Moss, John R. Meredith, and Featherston Aylesworth.

A brief but interesting sketch is given of the legal and military life of those named, describing how each one did his duty. The Historian then makes a plea for the erection of a memorial "to the memory of all members of our profession who have passed to the Great Beyond as a result of their participation in the Great War—something enduring to perpetuate for all time the glorious example and heroic sacrifice of these our brothers who freely gave their lives for the principles of Liberty and Justice, the principles which the Bench and Bar are trained to administer."

FAIR RENTALS COURT.

The formation of new courts seems to have fired the imagination of a member of the Ontario Legislature. This time the desire is to establish a "Fair Rentals Court." We fail to see any virtue in the proposition. If a man chooses to build a house and pay his taxes
