Stood the Test!

Our illustration shows an 18 Pr. Q. F. Shrapnel Shell after it had satisfactorily undergone the "Firing Proof," the final test required before acceptance of a lot of Shells by the War Office.

This final Test determines whether or not a lot of Shells is serviceable and the passing of all the other tests and gaugings in the process of manufacture stands for nothing unless the Shell selected for the firing proof, stands this final test.

There is a Final Test for Machine Tools as well as for Shells and the passing of all the preliminary tests of appearance, weight, price and delivery won't help a line of Machine Tools that can't pass the Final Test—the Test of Time—
