think of the pleasure we experienced on hearing the soul-stirring stains of St. Patrick's Day and Garry Owen played by the Band, who had arrived from Prescott, after five hours labour on the road, in the shape of shoveling, &c .- (a supply of shovels having been brought along)-to break the way for their horses, through the many snow-drifts. They are entitled to the warmest thanks of the Irishmen of Brockville, for the noble and gallant manner in which they fulfilled their agreement. None but men of sterling metal would have braved the difficulties. Many St. Patrick's Days may they live to play .-Shortly after the arrival of the Band, snowploughs were got into active operation clearing the streets over which the Procession was to pass-according to programme; and never did men work with more enthusiasm, than did the members of the Society, so profoundly animated were they with the desire to commemorate the Day.

The state of the s

Having succeeded in the object for which they laboured so hard, the members repaired to the Town Hall, where the Procession was formed; and at ten o'clock, headed by the Marshall of the day on horse-back-who looked remarkably grand-and the Band, drawn by a splendid pair of horses (gratuitously provided by the proprietor of the Willson House for the occasion). commenced sits march to the Church, for the purpose of assisting at Mass.

Arriving opposite the Church the procession-1sts entered in regular order—the Band remaining to discourse sweet music, and to bring up the rear, all of which they executed admirably - and proceeding to arrange their beautiful Bancers on each side of the Altar very tastefully. Returning to their respective places, the President, Vice-President, and other officers seated themselves in front of the Sanctuary, - amongst whom I notired our talented townsman, J. J. Dunlop, Esq., who, although a Protestant, showed his liberality and love for Erin, by taking part in the proceedings with all the zeal and reverence of a genuine Irishman, as he is.

The Band was accomodated with seats in the Choir gallery, and at half-past ten our devoted pastor, the Rev. Mr. Byrne, commenced Divine Service; he sung Muss in his usual melodious and solemn manner, affecting to the Irish heart, eausing it to commune with its God in profound devotion. The Choir executed Deminti's Mass in C sweetly, beautifully, and artistically. I have never heard any Choir music to surpass itof equal size. - The lady performers especially, descrive great credit. Immediately after the first Gospel, the Rev. Mr. Lonergan, of Kingston, ascended the pulpit, and preached an eloquent and very feeling sermon on the life and successful missionary labors of Ireland's Patron Saint, and I can assure you, Mr. Editor, that I never listened to anything more powerful-intellectually or learnedly-than the rev. gentleman's discourse. For an hour he held his hearers in an attitude of faces. It was truly a remarkable instance of admiration and attention, so ably and searchingly did he treat his subject. Spare him long O Lord! to thy Church and people.

Mass being ended the members resumed their positions in the procession, and marched through the principal streets of the town. As it moved along, its appearance was grand and imposing. The Green Flag of Ireland, with a painting of St. Patrick on it; the Harp of Erin, resting on possible for them to do, considering that there the shoulders of a stalwart son; the battle axes must always be some organized body in existence and spears tipped with green ribbon; the neat to take up such matters, and that the only Sobadges of the members, together with the Union | ciety among them is but of a few weeks growth. Jack, supported by a pair of brawny arms, inspired all who gathered in the route to witness the scene with delight.

In due course, the Society returned Town Hall, where the President, Mr. P. J. Maher, delivered a spirited and truly patriotic which was well filled on the occasion. speech, which evidenced his ability for the honorable position he holds, and his love for Ireland and the Irish. Speeches were also made by Director, and some other gentlemen, occupied other members, and by the Rev. Mr. Lanergan, who kindly consented to address the assembled audience. And, after three hearty Irish cheers for Old Ireland, and three for our Holy Father Pope Pius IX., &c., were given, the proceedings terminated. Before the Band left, who were anxious to get home with day light, on account of the roads, they and some of the Society, visited the Rev. Mr. Byrne at his residence, who extended to them his generous Irish hospitality.

I almost forgot to mention that I noticed a goodly number of strangers assisting at Divine Service, and was much pleased in recognizing the familiar countenance of Mr. Harty of Kingston, who, I afterwards learned, accompanied the Rev. Mr. Lanergan to our good town.

I have, Mr. Editor, trespassed upon your valuable space to too great an extent, and will conclude by saying that the celebration of St. Patrick's Day in the loyal old town of Brockville, was a decided triumph; all connected therewith felt proud, happy and pleased at its success. HIBERNICUS.

ST: PATRICKS DAY IN TORONTO. (From the Toronto Mirror)

The Procession of Monday was one of the largest and best conducted on record. Although exclusively Hibernian in its composition and management, it presented a most respectable and creditable appearance, and many were the expressions of satisfaction which it elicited from the bye-standers. The men were well dressed and well marshalled, the general uniform being black heaver hats and black coats. On the breast each man wore a hadge about eight inches long, trimined with gold or silver fringe, and surmount-ed by a harp of frosted elever. There were nigh 600 men wearing those beautiful badges. Underneath the harp there was done in bronze the words "Hibernian Benevolent Society." In the matter of badges, banners, and general dress, the nine members. procession was superior to any turn-out that we have ever seen in Toronto.

On the morning of the 17th the weather was very fine; the air being clear overhead and the ground being covered with snow, sufficient to make the walking excellent, and to leave no room for a "draggle-tail" reproach, even from the most censorious. At 9 o'clock the procession began to assemble in front of St. Paul's Church, on Power street. Crowds began to pour in from by the Irishmen of Ottawa and their descendants, in quality, as well as to the style in which it was served all points, so that in half an hour the banners a style far in advance of any that has characterized up.

King street, the band in advance playing "Garit kept gradually increasing.

The procession having reached the Cathedral, entered it and remained, with banners unturled, while High Mass was being celebrated by His Lordship Right Rev. Dr. Lynch. The sermon was preached by the Rev. Philip Cummings, of Duffin's Creek, and we only express the general opinion when we say, that it has been seldom equalled, considering the very general nature of the facts connected with the subject, and the circumstance that it has been commented upon by the brightest men of the day. After Mass the procession re-formed upon Church street, and while standing in line, His Lordship the Bishop, accompanied by the Rev. Pastor of St. Paul's, having appeared at the balcony of the Palace, was greeted with loud cheers. The body then marched up Queen street to Bathurst street, accompanied by the Rev. Messrs. Flannery and Proulx, the latter wearing the shamrock.

The day passed off without the slightest disturbance of any kind. In the procession, as well as out of it, there was nothing but harmony and order. In regard to the numbers, where the line was so vast, and after the procession advanced up Queen street, so dense, such a thing as a close count was next to impossible. The Globe, however, whom no one can accuse of partiality to the processionists, sets down the figure as high as 1,500. We should be inclined to think that, including those who proceeded in vast crowds on the side walks, there were 5,000 persons out in all. If, however, all the Catholic Societies, as well as the Schools had marched in procession, as in old times, Toronto itself could bardly have held them. Yet, as it was, it was a most astonishing display.

The Music during the day was excellent, the Mimico and Callaghan's especially, giving the people a complete selection of the favorite Irish airs. Indeed, in the matter of music, this procession surpassed all others, there being three very fine bands present. There was one peculiar feature in the procession which, in justice to the processionists themselves, as well as to the Catholic public generally it is well to notice. It was confined in a remarkably exclusive manner, to the working classes of the Catholics of Toronto. More than two-thirds were young men in their third decade, and possessed of a fine physique and manly appearance. There were not over a couple of hundred men of mature age, or of professional occupations. Indeed, the old familiar faces of those who have followed the green in the streets of this city for twenty years were mostly absent. And the great wonder of every one was, how so large a demonstration could have been got up with such a large numbes of new and comparatively strange the progress of Catholicity in Toronto.

ST. PATRICK'S DAY IN DUNDAS.

To the Editor of the True Wilness. This time-honored Anniversary of Ireland's Patron Saint, the glorious Apostle St. Patrick, was celebrated by the Irishmen of Dundas, in as becoming and suitable a manner as it was well

In the morning, Mass was celebrated by the Rev. Mr. O'Reilly, and a suitable panegyric of the Saint delivered. In the evening, the Hiber- Patrick themselves. nia Catholic Literary Association held a soiree in the Roman Catholic Separate School-house,

The President of the Society occupied the Chair. The Rev. Mr. O'Reilly, who is Spiritual seats on the platform. After a few opening remarks from the President, the Rev. Mr. O'Reilly delivered a very excellent address, and was loudly applauded at its close. G. M. Barton, Esq., also made some eloquent and suitable remarks, and was duly honored with hearty applause. The Musical Programme was very good, chiefly selections from "Moore's Irish Melodies," which were performed by some ladies and gentlemen of the choir, assisted by other amateurs. Miss M. Burns presided at the piano. The singing of Mrs. A. R. M'Donald and the Misses Britt was particularly good, and brought forth the warm feelings of the audience while singing those beautiful old airs, that make every true Irish heart throb with emotion while listening to them. Refreshments were supplied he very satisfactorily discharged his engagement. It may not be out of place to mention that in the course of the evening Mr. Gibson, Town Councillor, made some happy remarks in approval of the Society celebrating The Day in the manner that it did. About half past eleven the audience returned to their homes, all appearing to be well pleased with the entertainment.

I would mention, by way of apology, that the Society above mentioned, only being formed on the 3rd of March, and it being immediately decided to celebrate the 17th in as suitable a manner as the shortness of time would permit, the notice of the Society being formed was deferred until a report of the proceeding of that Day could be sent with it. I append a list of Officers elected for the present year. The name taken is "Hibernia Catholic Literary Association of Dundas":-

ST. PATRICK'S DAY AT UTTAWA. From the Ottawa Tribune.

On Monday the 17th inst., the 1397th Anniversary of Ireland's Patron Saint, was celebrated in this city be wished, and reflected great credit on him as to its were elevated, and the procession, marched on up it on former occasions. The day, for the nonce, was all that could be desired. The thaw of the proceeding week had disposed of the greater part of the snow that lay on the streets, and a slight frost on ryowen-na-gloria." The number present in the beginning was very large, and as it went forward Sunday afternoon and night sealed up the remaining portion, and left the roads in excellent marching condition. As the appointed hour of procession (half-past nine) drew near, the street in the vicinity of the Hall of the St. Patrick's Literary Society, was being well peopled with the stalworth looking sons of old Erin, and her comely daughters; it was at once evident that a demonstration was contemplated, and as to its character, and in honor of whom, to all who were blessed with the light of vision it was palpably apparent. For who that saw green gowns and green ribbons, green sashes and green shamrocks, displayed on all sides of him, could besitate to pronounce its character Irish, and when he heard the never to be forgotten "My Patrick's pot on you" greeting on his ear, could he be at a loss to divine that it was Ireland's own Patrick who was to be honored on the occasion?

At about ten o'clock some fifteen hundred processionists had assembled, and the marshalls of the day, Messrs. Kilduff and Caldwell, commenced to arrange them in marching order.

Upon arriving at the Cathedral, the religious services of the day commenced by a solemn High Mass (Corum Pontifice), the Rev. Father Cook, Professor of St. Joseph's College, as celebrant, assisted by the Rev. Messrs. O'Connor and Gelinas, as deacon and subdeacon. Immediately after the Gospel, the Rev. Father McGrath, also Professor of the College, ascended the pulpit and delivered an impressive and able discourse on the subject of the day.

After Mass, the Procession again formed, in the same order, their numbers being augmented by some hundreds; and Phoebus, who, in the fore part of the day, seemed only to look upon them through a veil, during the interval of prayer dispelled the intervening vapors and shone out brilliantly on their reo: ganization. From the church the procession stretched down Sussex street, and on the signal to proceed being given, the leaders wheeled round and returned to St. Patrick street, down which they proceeded until the Band of the Society came opposite the Palace, when they halted and opened out to admit of the Vice-President, who was accompanied by the Rev. Father McGrath and Marshal Killduff, to salute His Lordship the Rt. Rev. Bishop, which ceremony being performed, they again closed, and the President and Marshal having taken up their respective positions, the procession proceeded along St. Patrick to Dalhousie street, up Dalhousie to Rideau, round Rideau to Sussex, down which they returned to the Hall from which they set out, the Bands, the while, playing "Garryowen," "The White Cockade," Patrick's Day," and such like inspiring national

In the evening a Grand Concert was given in Her Majesty's Theatre, under the anspices of the Society, and a greater success than it proved to be, we have not before witnessed in the city.

ST. PATRICK'S DAY IN ST. JOHNS, C.E. To the Editor of the True Witness.

in Montreal on the Anniversary of our Patron Saint; but in St. Johns we had any quantity of snow; indeed it looked more like a morning in January than in March. Nevertheless the Irish heart was warm; and fow as they number in St. Johns the sons of St. Saint, and that in a manner which would please St. Patrick most, because it was to give the highest glory to Almighty God. Therefore, all the Irish of the town, and very many good Canadians, with many of our separated brethren too, met at the church for Mass at eight o'clock in the morning. Now, Sir, you must remember our church is a country church, not such a grand one as a St. Patrick's of Montreal, and long may it continue grand; yet, Sir, the church looked well that morning, and all that our good Cure, the Rev. Mr. LaRoque, could do he did to make the altar worthy of the occasion. Before Mass the organ pealed out "St. Patrick's Day" I turned round, Mr Editor, and saw many smiling, happy faces, both of men and women, each man having a badge of green on his breast and every woman wearing green, if only a new ribbon on her bonnet, to show that she was a daughter of the Emerald Isle. But what pleased me well, Sir, was to see our French Canadian brethren not only assist at our Mass, but seeming, for the day at least, to claim a part in St.

The Reverend Cure celebrated the solemn High Mass, the Rev. Mr. Fitzgerald assisted as Deacon, and the Vicar, the Rev. M. Jessimire, as Sub-Deacon. -And here, Sir, I deed feel proud when I saw the three Priests at the altar, for their vestments were fit for any church in the world; indeed I was astonished to see such aplendid vestments in so small a town; and I thought to myself that the Priest who had succeeded in obtaining such had been no sluggard in the Lord's vineyard.

The preacher of the day was the Rev. Mr. Fitzgeraid; and I only wish, Sir, that my pen could do jus-tice to the reverend preacher. I have beard many sermons upon St. Patrick's Day, but never have I heard one that pleased me more than the one upon this occasion. He took his text from Ecclesiastes-The memory of the just shall not pass away, but his name shall be in request from generation to gene-

He began by pointing out to us how our Holy Mother the Church brought us together upon Saints' days, not only to do honor to the Saints, but to give them to us as an example. He quoted many passages from both the Old and New Testaments to show us mory of their Patron Saint, if I might judge by the how much better example was than precept; he showed that no better example could be taken by any man as his guide, no matter what his position or condition of life, than the example set by our glorious our forefathers. ST. PATRICK'S DAY AT SHERBROOKE. From the Sherbrooke Gazette.

On St. Patrick's day our Irish friends celebrated the festival of their patron Baint by the naual procession from their Hall to the Catholic Church, where an excellent and appropriate discourse was delivered to the members by the Rev. Mr. Quinn, after which the members of the Society returned in procession to their fine Hall in Griffith's Building.

In the Evening the usual dinner was given by Mr. J. D. Coates, of which it need only be said that it was all, in excellence and variety, that could

ST. PATRICK'S DAY IN QUEBEC. (From the Quebec Chronicle)

The boisterous weather of yesterday morning was decidedly against the out-door display by our fellowcitizens of Irish birth or descent. The roads, too, were in anything but a favorable condition for the march of a procession. Nevertheless, the programme of the occasion was well carried out. The different sections of the St. Patrick's Society mustered in their respective districts and marched, headed by their officers, to the Place d'Armes, where the grand muster of the Society took place. About half past nine o'clock the procession was formed by the mount-ed marshals, and marched to St. Patrick's Church where Divine service was offered up and the sermon for the occasion was preached by the Bev. B. Me-Gauran, Pastor. There was, as usual, a grand musical service under the management of the organist of the church. After Divine service the line of march was resumed, and the Society called at the residence of the Grand President, Hon. C. Alleyn, St. Lewis Street; and paid their respects. The next complimentary call was at the City Hall, where His Worship appeared in person and warmly thanked his fellow-countrymen for the honor they had done him. The procession next halted at the Government House, Place d'Armes, to salute His Excellency the Governor General. His Excellency appeared upon the steps of the building, accompanied by his Secretary, Mr. D. Godley, Lieut.-Col. Irvine, A. D. C., and seversi members of the Administration; and, amid loud cheers, proceeded to acknowledge the salute in few but well chosen words. He commenced by allading to the manifestations of unanimous loyalty made by the people of this country, of whatever origin, on a recent critical occasion; and commented upon the noble conduct of the men of Irish birth and Irish descent. Celebrations like the present, His Excellency remarked, did not interfere with their duties as citizens of the British Empire, or their . loyalty as subjects of the Queen; on the contrary they lended to strengthen the family ties of the nations composing the Empire, and to bind them together in one common sentiment of loyalty and fidelity. It was with this feeling that Irishmen throughout the world-whether is Ireland or Australia, or Canada-celebrated their national festival. Enthusiastic cheering followed His Excellency's discourse, and the Society proceeded to the Archereche, after which they marched through several streetsthe different sections finally proceeding to their own localities, accompanied by their officers. We may mention that, during the day, the "Red-cross ban- ; what advanced. ner", of the St. George's Society waved from the Mcreury establishment; the St. Jean Baptiste Society displayed their colors from the "Institut Canadien" and everywhere the best feeling was manifested by men of all origins, which feeling was fully recipro-

The young and eloquent preacher spoke as alone an frish priest can speak when Ireland and her faith are his themes.

At the conclusion of Divine service, the President of our Society waited upon our Rev. Pastor, the Rev. Leon Rousseau, and returned the grateful thanks of our people to him and his Rev. guests, who had contributed so much to the eclat of the feast. The people of St. Malachi will long preserve in grateful remembrance the zeal and affection of their beloved Pastor for his Trish parishioners which enabled them to celebrate St. Patrick's Day in so worthy a manner; and they carnestly pray that Divine Providence will leave bim among them for many a long day.

ST. PATRICK'S DAY IN ROXBURY, MASS., U.S. To the Editor of the True Witness. Roxbury, March 18, 1862.

DEAR SIR-Having had the pleasure of being pre-

Saint in St. Joseph's Church, Roxbury, I was so delighted with all I saw and heard that I resolved on sending you the following notice of the Celebration. The rising sun of the 17th of March ushered in as bright a morning as one could desire. Everything seemed calculated to cheer up the spirits of the Sons of Erin; and certainly those of them residing in Roxbury and its vicinity still love and cherish the me numbers that assembled in St. Joseph's Church on yesterday to honor the memory of that Saint who first kindled the spark of divine faith in the hearts of the right to expect their children to lead a good one. powerful sermon.
