

going to keep them, and still let the offer stand open for his advantage if P. like to try for them. I did not offer money as a prize, but if I had a thousand pounds to dispose of and had offered it, I should have no little fear of having to hand it over as I have of parting with my books.

Now, Mr. Editor, I have done, at least for the present, thanks for your kindness in giving me so much room, and commending the subject of baptism to the careful study of our friends who sprinkle; and trusting the discussion has tended to create interest therein, and that the time may speed along when the truth which is mighty shall prevail.

"Then let us pray that come it may
As come it will for a' that."

I am, yours,

J. BROWN.
