

"She was sittin in the door when I went to her, and she raised her old dim eyes, almost white with age, and looked at me. 'Why, Massa Joe, God bless you.'"—Letter III. p. 20.