GEORGE M. PULLMAN.

GEORGE M. PULLMAN.

Whosoever has ridden in or seen what is popularly known as a Pullman car will easily recognize this name. The beautiful cars made by the company of which he is the head and the moving spirit, are run on every line of railroad in this country save one, and are winning their way in England despite the prejudices of our English friends in favor of their own quaint vehicles. Mr. Pullman is very wealthy, being worth probably about $10,000,000. His business is chiefly carried on at an industrial village called Pullman, situated a few miles south of Chicago, near Lake Michigan. The plan of this place is very novel, and it is well worth a visit from those who are interested in schemes to combine hard common labor with the mental, moral, and physical improvement of the workmen. Mr. Pullman's residence in Chicago is one of the most notable and magnificent in the United States. Attached to it there is an immense conservatory, and a theatre, in which private performances are frequently given before audiences especially invited. Both Mr. Pullman and his family entertain largely, and famous persons from all sections may be met at his house. Mr. Pullman is now about fifty years of age, and is in the prime of his activity and strength.

Dyspepsia.

Grand Detour, Ill., March 27, 1884.

Mr. A. J. WHITE, New York.

Dear Sir:—I would like to say a word in regard to your wonderful medicine, as it has done wonders for me. I had suffered for years with dyspepsia, but after having taken two bottles of Seigel's Curative Syrup am entirely cured, all owing to your valuable discovery.

Yours respectfully, FRANK PALMER.

Getting Things Mixed.—Her head was pillowed his breast, and looking up in a shy way she said:
"Don't you know, dear George, that—"

"You mean dear James, I think," he interrupted, smiling fondly at her mistake.
"Why yes, to be sure. How stupid I am. I was thinking this is Wednesday evening."
