

NEW BUILDINGS WILL BE PLACED BY FAIR BOARD

Question Will Be Discussed
by Directors Shortly.

Extent of the building operations which the Western Fair Association may undertake next spring is not yet determined, according to Secretary A. M. Hunt, and will rest largely with the new board to be appointed in February. Mr. Hunt admitted that in a vague way the present directors have a mind what these building operations will probably include, but nothing will be definitely decided upon for some time yet.

The erection of new sheep and swine barns, and new storage buildings west of the present cattle barns in the territory purchased early in the year, and used only as judging grounds by boys and girls, has been discussed as probably the best means of providing increased space for the old grounds. The removal of the present sheep and swine barns and the old storage building would leave more space for machinery and tractor exhibits, and possibly the present machinery building might be enlarged.

Midway Was Crowded. The Johnny Jones Show was admitted generally to be the best yet secured by the Western Fair, but they were much less than mid-way shows previously offered, and space was, as a result, pretty well crowded for the city money and tractor exhibits. As it was the Johnny Jones people had several shows that were crowded out of the midway. It has been made to letting the midway take up too much space, but the smaller midway usually have some objectionable features, and have not always been satisfactory.

Connecting the old grounds with the new territory a large passageway will probably be cut through the cattle barns, or possibly an avenue opened to admit visitors to the new space without going through the cattle barns. How much building will be undertaken next spring is purely problematical, but it is probably a beginning will be made in a new and additional stock barns.

A New Feature. A new feature of interest to the farm boys and girls will be added in the form of a calf competition. Lieut. Col. Robert McEwen, Capt. T. E. Robson, Rescue Flinn, B.S.A. and E. Whaley, B.S.A., are the committee handling this competition, and the Toronto packing interests have offered and will offer prizes. Prizes will be offered for the best calves, not necessarily thoroughbred, raised and exhibited by boys and girls.

Replying to criticisms that the stock judging takes place on days when comparatively few people are present to witness it, Mr. McEwen said that it must be concluded Tuesday night, in order that the prize checks can be got ready for the exhibitors before they leave on Friday.

BUSY SESSIONS FOR CIVIC COMMITTEES

Four Meetings Are Scheduled
At City Hall This Afternoon.

No dust will gather in the committee rooms at the city hall today. Four meetings are scheduled for this afternoon between 3:30 p.m. and midnight. The members of the public utilities commission will be the first to convene in a solemn convocation. They likely will have a further discussion on increasing the city's water supply, but little new business is expected.

No. 3 committee of the board of education will be the next to convene. Consideration of plans for the new college will be their principal duty.

No. 2 committee of the board of education will be the next to step up to the plate. They will open in session a few minutes to open tenders for the paving plant. The bids will then be brought in at a recommendation meeting held at the regular meeting next Tuesday. It is expected that four or five tenders will be received.

The housing commission will be the last of the quartet to get busy. They will grapple with a number of the housing problems in connection with the housing of the city.

FIFTY MILLION-DOLLAR PAPER. [Special to The Advertiser.] Though lacking confirmation, it is believed circles close to the pulp and paper industry that negotiations are rapidly approaching completion of the combination of Maritime Province Lumber, pulp and paper interests that will bring together several existing pulp and paper mills with one of Canada's biggest lumber producers, and will, in addition, involve the purchase of the largest tract of freehold pulp lands in existence. The development of the Canadian lumber and pulp industry, and the producers, competing only with such concerns as the American, Canadian and British. The development of the industry to which much significance is attached, for it is expected that the financing of approximately $50,000,000 is involved in the project, a transaction indicative of developments of major importance.

WOULD BUY BONDS OF STREET RAILWAY

Outstanding Issues Can Be Purchased For $150,000,
Says W. G. Tite.

Buying outstanding street railway bonds instead of paying for the road, the hydro-electric valuation was suggested today by W. G. Tite, secretary of the Labor Representation Committee. According to Mr. Tite, the city council is anxious to buy the road at the price he claims is too great. This price would be about a million and a quarter, while outstanding bonds could be bought for $150,000. The holders of the bonds own the road, he argues.

Mr. Tite pointed out that if the road was bought at its full valuation the shareholders would not be paid at all, whereas the shares are at a very low value at present, he claims. There was no talk of paying for the road by the London and Lake Erie Railway when the hydro system negotiated for its purchase, he said. All the offers made for it were so low that the directors finally sold it as scrap.

Linking up the railway with the London and Port Stanley road is the only means by which the hydro system can take it over, he asserts. It cannot operate it as a separate line, if freight cars are put on the line, however, and a freight business developed within the city it can be regarded as part of the railway. He is against this proposal, as he claims the city would lose control of both the streets and the car system.

PLAN TO CONNECT INDUSTRIAL AND RESIDENTIAL AREAS

No. 2 Committee To Go Into The Question At Next Meeting.

Plans for connecting the East London industrial area with the residential district south of the Hamilton road will be made at the next meeting of No. 2 committee of the city council, Ald. E. R. Seabrook said today. This project was under advisement by the town planning committee. The present idea is of that body makes it impossible for it to deal with the matter. It will, therefore, be taken up directly by the committee.

Disagreements which finally led to the breaking of the committee's announcement at a meeting called for the discussion of the scheme. The purpose of the gathering was to discuss the proposed connection between the industrial and residential areas. The plan was to build a road from the industrial area to the residential area, and to build a bridge over the river.
