offerings of stock at the present prices are of too small a calibre to prevent advances. Traders who confine their operations largely to this market were buyers to-day on the presumption that a bigger speculation will ultimately invade this field and that with this increased buying power some sharp advances will result on this account.

There was nothing in the news either inside or outside of the market to-day to account for any special movements. Money is freely available on any ordinary stock collateral at the present time, but brokers are not at present called upon to exercise their privileges with the banks on account of the small speculative situation which exists.

Despite the freedom of the money market inventor and good buy-market inventors.

J. R. Heintz & Co. wired R. B. Holden: There are a great many stocks among the good paying rallroads tho: should do much better. Among them are G.Q., B.O., ILLS., and C.P.R. Monday Evening, March 29. Speculation in a broad sense has not yet entered the Toronto stock market. That it will do so there appears to be little doubt among the best judges of market movements. The public has not become convinced that stocks are scarce, that money is cheap, and that any general recognition of these conditions will impel a movement which will be difficult to control when it develops in full force. To-day's market was quiet. There was no attempt to force prices, and offerings were courted by those wanting to pick up stocks. On its face the market

UTICA, N.Y., March 29.-Eli Christan, an aged man, was found dead sit-ting in his chair in his home some distance south of Mohawk to-day. He lived alone.

All his life Mr. Christian has aborred profanity and he held himself aloof from people because to hear pro-fanity gave him so much pain, he requested long ago that when he died he should be norne to the grave by men who never used profanity, and he selected those who should act as his bearers.
They are alive and Mr. Christian will

The Globe and Mr. Foster.

In defending Hon Geo. E. Foster's uit for libel, The Globe says that the orilla report was "fair and accurate, and not published or made maliciously, and the publication thereof was for the public benefit," made by The Globe "as an exponent of public opinion and as a property-holder and taxpayer in the Dominion of Canada, interested in the honorable and efficient adminis-fration of the finances of Canada."
