

There is a tax of 25 cents per hundred weight of salt. No citizen is allowed to walk the streets with a lantern, or to carry a lighted torch, or to use any other lighted apparatus, except a gas lamp, under a penalty of $5 for each offence.

He is not at liberty to lodge any new person in his house for a single night, whether a native or foreigner, friend or stranger, without giving information in advance to the authorities.

The African trade is notoriously encouraged by the government, and without the presence of the slave, the country would be a desert. It is estimated that 200,000 slaves are imported annually, and that the revenue realized of over $200,000 annually.

Such is a portion of the grievances which the Cubans complain. We do not think they greatly overstate their case. Spain does not recognize in Cuba any political rights; she does not allow to her people, even in the provinces, the same rights as she allows to her subjects in the rest of her empire.

The latest statistics published by the Government, in 1877, give the total population of the island 1,200,000. The population in 1876 was 1,180,000. The population in 1875 was 1,160,000. The population in 1874 was 1,140,000.

The Governor has made no reply to our Consul, who had transmitted despatches to Washington stating the fact and calling for additional power to second demands.

Despatches were yesterday sent to such portions of our squadron as could be immediately collected at Havana to inform the Government, and to request that the Spanish Government refuse the Consul General's demand for the release of the vessels.

It is reported that two vessels with reinforcement of all vessels that were commissioned to assist in the operations of the Spanish Government, and if not given up to seize them by force.

The article in question is followed by a dozen stanzas of poetry, entitled "The Modern Argonauts," and in which Lord Palmerston's Greek policy is shown in rather bold and unflattering terms.

We have next, Part VI. of "The Peasants' Revolt," by Mr. G. M. P. This is a really interesting article, embracing the causes and consequences of the great social and political revolution which broke out in England in 1381.
