

Who Said--- Swat the Fly--?

Every house supposed to be protected from flies by so-called fly killers has the pests all over the place.

The job is never done.

But shut doors and windows once and spray away with Flyosan—what happens? Nothing escapes. Out of cracks and hiding places they all rush, every kind of insect. Heading for the light of the window they fall dead—gassed! Flyosan is harmless to everybody and everything else. 8 oz. bottle with mouth blower—50c. Hand Sprayer with 16 oz. can, $1.40.

IN THE MARKET.

The country market presented a very pleasing appearance this morning and the housewife had a good variety from which to choose for her Sunday dinner. In addition to strictly utilitarian exhibits there was on sale a large quantity of flowers and these made the building look like a fairy garden with their wonderful tints. All the produce shown this morning was native, with the exception of tomatoes, and there was a plentiful supply of all. Pears and beans sold for 40 cents a peck, strawberries were selling for 20 to 25 cents a box, and new, 50 cents a peck. Lamb sold for 20 to 30 cents a pound by the quarter. Cucumbers were 10 cents each.

As Hiram Sees It

"Hiram," said the Times reporter to Mr. Hiram Hornbeam, "if you see me going through The Settlement in a car this afternoon don't get excited and drop the pitchfork."

"He you gonto git out o' town?" said Hiram. "Aint nothin' wrong?"

"All's right with the world," said the reporter, "and with me."

"Well, now I look here," said Hiram. "You jist haul up at my place an' git a good drink o' butter-milk. Hanner hes some that's jist right. An' if you hev time I want to show you the finest field o' potatoes they is in this gate o' Wreck. If you hev time to stay over we'd take a run out to the lake an' try fer a trout. I'd take a half-day off to go round with you—an' Hanner shed love to show you her garden an' let you sample her blueberry pie."

"Nothing would suit me better," said the reporter, "but time will not permit. What I appreciate most is your restraint. You have not even suggested that you would like me to bluster my hands in the hayfield or turn the griststone. That is very noble of you, Hiram."

"If you come too often," said Hiram, "I might. I aint above doin' it with some folks—when they stay too long—no, sir."
