Weekes ndp campus leader

Irvine Weekes, a second year honors economics student from Barbados, has been elected leader of the Campus New Democratic Party club. The election was held last Saturday.

The leadership convention was held in conjunction with a seminar on organization in SUB Saturday afternoon. The seminar opened with an address by Jack Hampson, president of the Alberta Federation of Labour. He outlined the development of the NDP and the role played by labor in its organization.

The basic reason why labor is taking political action, he stated, is that its voice had been consistently ignored by the other major political parties.

Three panels on organization were held: "The Entry of the NDP into Local Politics," "How to Win Campus Elections," and "Inside the Provincial Organization."

Approximately thirty people attended the seminar.
