QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Miscellaneous.

TREE THAT STOCK WILL NOT GNAW—FREE SCIONS FOR GRAFTING.

1. Is there any kind of tree that stock will not damage by gnawing or eating the twigs?

2. Can one get tree seeds or scions for grafting from the experimental farms free of charge?

ANS.—1. Stock delights in rubbing against nearly all kinds of trees, and in eating at the young twigs. The thorn is less liable to be injured from this cause than any other tree or shrub that we know of.

2. Tree seeds and scions in limited quantities have been distributed from the experimental farms. Whether such can be obtained there now can be easily ascertained by writing to the farm from which you wish to secure seed.

Dad's Retrospect.

Jerusalem: "Dad" was a wonderful chap. Before I was around to see. He used to perform most wonderful feats. When he was a shaver like me.

He used to get up before daylight and make

The fire, and then he would go

Way out to the stable and do all the chores

Before there was a track in the snow.

He'd split up the kindling and bring in the wood

Without either grumble or frown.

Oh! "Dad" was a ripper at doing odd jobs;

But never since I've been around.

And, too, in the springtime he'd rake up the yard

And dig in the garden all day.

Without ever thinking of playing at ball,

Or looking for flowers in May.

He never went fishing when he was a boy.

Nor chased around after a kite,

And always was ready to scamper to bed

Without being ordered at night.

Dad never went bathing down to the pond,

Like Jimmy and Teddy and me

Well, that I believe, 'cause he ain't had a bath

Since I've been around to see.

Yes, Dad's fifty something, and I'm only ten.

But I think he'd been younger if he

Had spent a few hours in flying a kite.

When he was a shaver like me.

COSSIP.

A young lady of the law defended an old convict on the charge of burglary. The rules of the court (it was in Massachusetts) allowed each side one hour in which to address the jury.

The young lawyer, just before his turn came, consulted a veteran member of the bar who was in the court-room.

"How much time do you think I should take in addressing the jury?" he asked.

"You ought to take the full hour."

"The full hour? Why, I was only going to take ten minutes."

"You ought to take the full hour," reiterated the old lawyer.

"But why?"

"Because: the longer you talk, the longer you will keep your client out of jail."

Sydney, J. R. Keene's grand four-year-old, considered by race-horse men the greatest Thoroughbred ever uncovered in America, died recently from blood poisoning at Shepshead Bay, the trouble having, it is said, originated in a badly-bruised frog in the right fore foot.

Sydney had won for his owner in stakes alone $178,673 in less than two years.

Mr. Keene had many offers for the horse, the last being from a wealthy Englishman, whose trainer offered 40,000 guineas (over $200,000) for Sydney last winter. He was insured for $100,000.

He was a son of the noted English sire, Melton, and his dam, Optime, was by Orme. Mr. Keene bought the mare when in foal, brought her to America and placed her in his Castleton Stud, near Lexington, Ky., where Sydney was born.

Messrs. John McFarlane & W. H. Ford, Dutton, Ont., report sales of young Shorthorn bulls to the following: Mr. Kelly, Rodney, Mr. James Campbell, Fingal, Mr. Matthew Gilbert, St. Thomas.

We have on hand a choice lot of young bulls, including two eighteen-months old, red, out of imported dams, and by imported Royal Prince and Imp. Abbottsford Star, also two ten-months old, red and red-and-white, and one nine-months old; also a number of richly-bred cows and heifers in calf to the imported bulls.

Royal Prince and Abbottsford Star. This last-mentioned is a very handsome, three-year-old imported bull, and will be sold very reasonably to any person in need of such. In sheep, we have Oxford Down ewes and lambs, also Leicester ewes and lambs, both flocks being highly bred. Have Berkshires of both sexes, also a few Barred Rock fowl. A worthy feature of Mr. Primrose McConnell's excellent paper, "How to Improve Dairy Cattle," read at the last British Dairy Conference, is the tabulated results of the milk-testing system adopted on a number of farms by the Highland Agricultural Society. In one set of trials, 443 tons were tested on eighteen farms, and Mr. McConnell has worked out the figures from 10 per cent. of the best and 10 per cent. of the worst cows.

The best lot averaged 915 gallons in a season, and the worst only 563 gallons; the percentage of fat in the milk of the former averaged 3.89, and that of the latter, 3.61; and the value of the milk of the former at 5d. per gallon came out at £24 7s. 6d. per cow for the season, as compared with £14 2s. 1d. Here we have a difference of £10 5s. 5d. in the returns from equal numbers of cows, though one lot probably cost as much to keep as the other. In the other set of twelve farms, and 372 cows, the corresponding comparison was £17 1s. 2d. for only part of a season (thirty-four weeks), against £10 19s. 2d., showing a difference of £6 2s. The results of the weeding out of herds as suggested by these great differences are shown for these farms. The gradual rises in milk and butter yields obtained by weeding out the worst cows for five years are sufficiently remarkable. In the most striking case there were average increases per cow in the herd of 146 gallons of milk per annum and 824 lbs. of butter.
