

No general remarks concerning the amount of... the phlegm and do not... to good taste.

Thy mighty spirit... the first, second, and third essential of every action, not in quantity but quality.

Perhaps the defects of gesture are as attributable to architects as orators. The construction of monumental architecture, but usually on the idea of the criminal's box at courts; seldom on the idea that effective speaking was to be delivered therefrom.

Philip Lane Esq., of Fownal, P. E. I. Died at Mount Millick, Fownal Circuit, P. E. I. Island, on the 5th of September 1863.

From Our English Correspondent. The Anniversary of Leeds—Adapted to the Missionary in the Pacific—State of England—Retlessness of France.

Our departed brother has left a widow, and three sons with families to mourn their irreparable loss.

Provincial Wesleyan.

WEDNESDAY, OCT. 21, 1863.

The Literature of Our Day.

We cannot but be impressed with the events of the present day. Our age is often styled the age of progress; and, calmly considering its impulses, we are ready to acknowledge that the world is truly awake to an extent never known before.

in the erection of 20 chapels, and in the conversion of thousands of souls. However, peremptory instructions were sent out from London, and the Wesleyan missionary was obliged, with bleeding heart, to retire from the scene of his labours.

But about ten years ago when the management of the Wesleyan Missions developed upon the Australian continent, that body did not conceive itself to be absolutely bound by the unfortunate and disastrous agreement which had been made in London.

Politically there is absolutely nothing stirring. The country is prosperous, provisions are cheap, the people are contented beyond precedent.

Letter from Scotland. From our own Correspondent—State of the Church of England—Disunion of Presbyterians—Proposed Union of Presbyterian Bodies—Evangelical Alliance.

Letter from Rev. J. R. Matthews. St. John's, Nov. 14, 1863. Dear Brother McMurtry, When parting with you at Charleston during the Session of Conference, I think I promised to write you while on my way to my native land.

On Monday, Oct. 19th, I understood from an intelligent fellow passenger that authoritative observation or calculation had that day at noon been made of the Atlantic by such a detour from Cape Horn.

A fog bell or steam whistle ought at once to be placed on Cape Horn to warn incautious mariners so dangerous a locality in night and fog.

It is not what people eat, but what they digest, that makes them strong. It is not what they gain, but what they serve, that makes them rich.

St. Mary's Day was beautifully expressed, though a thick shroud of fog hung over the higher hills during the early part of the day on which our journey was resumed.

Pointe Bute Missionary Meetings. DEAR BROTHER, The services connected with the Anniversary of our Missionary Society, have recently been held in this Circuit.

Our first meeting was held at the Pointe Bute Church on Monday evening the 28th ult., and was said to be fully as well attended as is usual.

The proceeds, by collections and subscriptions are considerably in advance of last year; and the Divine principles and claims were clearly expounded and forcibly applied, by his excellent preaching. The same may also be said of the meeting at Fort Lawrence on Wednesday evening, where the speakers were the Chairman of the District, and Professor Milligan of Mount Allison College.

Notes of a Fortnight's Tour. No. 1. Imagine, good reader, a delightful steamboat excursion across the restless Bay of Fundy.

After an exciting chase the schooner was overtaken, a boat strongly manned urged towards the rough waters reached the little vessel, and brought a pilot to conduct us to St. John's, from which we were thirty miles distant.

It does not become me, perhaps, to express an opinion of the seamanship which under such circumstances suddenly hurried 250 souls to the very brink of eternity, for which many were, it is to be feared, wholly unprepared.

St. Mary's Day was beautifully expressed, though a thick shroud of fog hung over the higher hills during the early part of the day on which our journey was resumed.

It is not what people eat, but what they digest, that makes them strong. It is not what they gain, but what they serve, that makes them rich.

St. Mary's Day was beautifully expressed, though a thick shroud of fog hung over the higher hills during the early part of the day on which our journey was resumed.

Pointe Bute Missionary Meetings. DEAR BROTHER, The services connected with the Anniversary of our Missionary Society, have recently been held in this Circuit.

Our first meeting was held at the Pointe Bute Church on Monday evening the 28th ult., and was said to be fully as well attended as is usual.

The proceeds, by collections and subscriptions are considerably in advance of last year; and the Divine principles and claims were clearly expounded and forcibly applied, by his excellent preaching. The same may also be said of the meeting at Fort Lawrence on Wednesday evening, where the speakers were the Chairman of the District, and Professor Milligan of Mount Allison College.

Notes of a Fortnight's Tour. No. 1. Imagine, good reader, a delightful steamboat excursion across the restless Bay of Fundy.

After an exciting chase the schooner was overtaken, a boat strongly manned urged towards the rough waters reached the little vessel, and brought a pilot to conduct us to St. John's, from which we were thirty miles distant.

It does not become me, perhaps, to express an opinion of the seamanship which under such circumstances suddenly hurried 250 souls to the very brink of eternity, for which many were, it is to be feared, wholly unprepared.

St. Mary's Day was beautifully expressed, though a thick shroud of fog hung over the higher hills during the early part of the day on which our journey was resumed.

It is not what people eat, but what they digest, that makes them strong. It is not what they gain, but what they serve, that makes them rich.

St. Mary's Day was beautifully expressed, though a thick shroud of fog hung over the higher hills during the early part of the day on which our journey was resumed.

Pointe Bute Missionary Meetings. DEAR BROTHER, The services connected with the Anniversary of our Missionary Society, have recently been held in this Circuit.

Our first meeting was held at the Pointe Bute Church on Monday evening the 28th ult., and was said to be fully as well attended as is usual.

The proceeds, by collections and subscriptions are considerably in advance of last year; and the Divine principles and claims were clearly expounded and forcibly applied, by his excellent preaching. The same may also be said of the meeting at Fort Lawrence on Wednesday evening, where the speakers were the Chairman of the District, and Professor Milligan of Mount Allison College.

Notes of a Fortnight's Tour. No. 1. Imagine, good reader, a delightful steamboat excursion across the restless Bay of Fundy.

After an exciting chase the schooner was overtaken, a boat strongly manned urged towards the rough waters reached the little vessel, and brought a pilot to conduct us to St. John's, from which we were thirty miles distant.

It does not become me, perhaps, to express an opinion of the seamanship which under such circumstances suddenly hurried 250 souls to the very brink of eternity, for which many were, it is to be feared, wholly unprepared.

St. Mary's Day was beautifully expressed, though a thick shroud of fog hung over the higher hills during the early part of the day on which our journey was resumed.

It is not what people eat, but what they digest, that makes them strong. It is not what they gain, but what they serve, that makes them rich.

St. Mary's Day was beautifully expressed, though a thick shroud of fog hung over the higher hills during the early part of the day on which our journey was resumed.

Pointe Bute Missionary Meetings. DEAR BROTHER, The services connected with the Anniversary of our Missionary Society, have recently been held in this Circuit.

Our first meeting was held at the Pointe Bute Church on Monday evening the 28th ult., and was said to be fully as well attended as is usual.

The proceeds, by collections and subscriptions are considerably in advance of last year; and the Divine principles and claims were clearly expounded and forcibly applied, by his excellent preaching. The same may also be said of the meeting at Fort Lawrence on Wednesday evening, where the speakers were the Chairman of the District, and Professor Milligan of Mount Allison College.

Notes of a Fortnight's Tour. No. 1. Imagine, good reader, a delightful steamboat excursion across the restless Bay of Fundy.

After an exciting chase the schooner was overtaken, a boat strongly manned urged towards the rough waters reached the little vessel, and brought a pilot to conduct us to St. John's, from which we were thirty miles distant.

It does not become me, perhaps, to express an opinion of the seamanship which under such circumstances suddenly hurried 250 souls to the very brink of eternity, for which many were, it is to be feared, wholly unprepared.

St. Mary's Day was beautifully expressed, though a thick shroud of fog hung over the higher hills during the early part of the day on which our journey was resumed.

It is not what people eat, but what they digest, that makes them strong. It is not what they gain, but what they serve, that makes them rich.

St. Mary's Day was beautifully expressed, though a thick shroud of fog hung over the higher hills during the early part of the day on which our journey was resumed.

Pointe Bute Missionary Meetings. DEAR BROTHER, The services connected with the Anniversary of our Missionary Society, have recently been held in this Circuit.

Our first meeting was held at the Pointe Bute Church on Monday evening the 28th ult., and was said to be fully as well attended as is usual.

The proceeds, by collections and subscriptions are considerably in advance of last year; and the Divine principles and claims were clearly expounded and forcibly applied, by his excellent preaching. The same may also be said of the meeting at Fort Lawrence on Wednesday evening, where the speakers were the Chairman of the District, and Professor Milligan of Mount Allison College.

Notes of a Fortnight's Tour. No. 1. Imagine, good reader, a delightful steamboat excursion across the restless Bay of Fundy.

After an exciting chase the schooner was overtaken, a boat strongly manned urged towards the rough waters reached the little vessel, and brought a pilot to conduct us to St. John's, from which we were thirty miles distant.

It does not become me, perhaps, to express an opinion of the seamanship which under such circumstances suddenly hurried 250 souls to the very brink of eternity, for which many were, it is to be feared, wholly unprepared.

St. Mary's Day was beautifully expressed, though a thick shroud of fog hung over the higher hills during the early part of the day on which our journey was resumed.

It is not what people eat, but what they digest, that makes them strong. It is not what they gain, but what they serve, that makes them rich.

St. Mary's Day was beautifully expressed, though a thick shroud of fog hung over the higher hills during the early part of the day on which our journey was resumed.

Pointe Bute Missionary Meetings. DEAR BROTHER, The services connected with the Anniversary of our Missionary Society, have recently been held in this Circuit.

Our first meeting was held at the Pointe Bute Church on Monday evening the 28th ult., and was said to be fully as well attended as is usual.

The proceeds, by collections and subscriptions are considerably in advance of last year; and the Divine principles and claims were clearly expounded and forcibly applied, by his excellent preaching. The same may also be said of the meeting at Fort Lawrence on Wednesday evening, where the speakers were the Chairman of the District, and Professor Milligan of Mount Allison College.

Notes of a Fortnight's Tour. No. 1. Imagine, good reader, a delightful steamboat excursion across the restless Bay of Fundy.

After an exciting chase the schooner was overtaken, a boat strongly manned urged towards the rough waters reached the little vessel, and brought a pilot to conduct us to St. John's, from which we were thirty miles distant.

It does not become me, perhaps, to express an opinion of the seamanship which under such circumstances suddenly hurried 250 souls to the very brink of eternity, for which many were, it is to be feared, wholly unprepared.

St. Mary's Day was beautifully expressed, though a thick shroud of fog hung over the higher hills during the early part of the day on which our journey was resumed.

It is not what people eat, but what they digest, that makes them strong. It is not what they gain, but what they serve, that makes them rich.

St. Mary's Day was beautifully expressed, though a thick shroud of fog hung over the higher hills during the early part of the day on which our journey was resumed.