IN MEMORIAM.

"Momentous Questions," he handled well
Those Questions drove the Wedge to
He strove for Sewerage, but all in vain
For the Clique got in their Wagon again.

"Uphold the Truth," his Banner read;
"Down with the Clique," he always said.
But the small-pox scare proved 't just a
Few,
It split his little Wedge in two.
Adieu!—Adieu!

Memorial Tablet

A beautiful brass tablet was recently placed upon the wall at the entrance of the first corridor of Acadia Seminary bearing the following inscription:

"In Memoriam.
The Electric Lights in this Building Were presented to the Seminary In memory of Helen Read Taylor, (Acadia 1881-85), by Relatives and Friends."

The system of lighting to which reference is thus made was installed throughout the entire building last June, and has in the meantime given the utmost satisfaction to teachers and students. The tablet is in the form of a shield mounted on highly polished mahogany and bears the motto of the Perian Society. The design of the shield is chaste and artistic and is likely to be adopted by the school as the official form for monograms, pins, etc. The Perian motto is also to be adopted by the institution. In performing this service in memory of a very dear friend, Mrs. Ralph S. Eaton, of Kentville who was the moving spirit in the undertaking, (who collected $460 for the purpose) has not only perpetuated the name and memory of a former student and devoted friend of the institution, but has performed a service that can never fail to be appreciated by the residents and patrons of the school.

J. H. McDonald,
Principal, Acadia Seminary.
