Grown Up Children.

BY RUTH CAMERON.

The other day I met a fragile little mother leading by the hand a sturdy three-year old who must have weighed close to forty pounds.

At a party of the ways, the youngster decided to take the wrong road. His mother pleaded; he insisted. Finally he sat down on the curbing and howled. Whereupon that frail little woman, who could not have weighed over a hundred pounds herself, picked up that howling, kicking child and carried him towards home.

Although I knew her but slightly I could not help offering my assistance and protesting against the injustice she was doing herself. "He's altogether too heavy for you to carry," I said. "You'll certainly injure yourself."

"I suppose I ought not to do it," said the little mother, as she wearily put him down, "but it's the easiest way."

The easiest way, the easiest way—for how many follies, for how many mistakes and failures, for how much wasted power and inefficiency is that our feeble excuse.

There is a play called "The Easiest Way." You have probably heard of it: the Mayor of Boston by banishing it from the stage in his city, most successfully press-agented it for the rest of the country. This play deals with one notorious kind of Easiest Way, but not the only kind by any means. Believe me, The Easiest Way is on the sign board of more than one path to failure and unhappiness.

When a baby throws his toys from his high chair to the floor and then cries for them, the foolish mother picks them up because "it's the easiest way"—so much easier than teaching him that he must not throw them down.

As he grows older and learns to cry and tease for things she gives in again because that is "the easiest way."

Later she tries to teach him to be orderly about the room but he is so impatient of rebuke that she soon ceases trying to teach him this invaluable habit and picks up after him because "it's the easiest way."

And then, after she has followed this line of procedure all through his childhood, she wonders why he grows up headstrong, disobedient and selfish and generally a spoiled child: There isn't much room for wonder, is there? For the children brought up in "The Easiest Way" are pretty likely to be spoiled children.

A friend of mine often complains that she can never get good service from any maid more than a few months. "No matter how good they are at first," she says, "they soon get sloppy." I rather wondered at her difficulty until I visited her for a few weeks, and then I wondered no longer. For every time that the maid was careless or incompetent about anything, this woman would do the task herself rather than make the girl do it right. "It's the easiest way," she said.

Whisper, while I tell you a secret. There's a very queer thing about all paths marked "The Easiest Way." When you start down them, everything looks pleasant and the path is broad and smooth. But before you have traveled very far, the landscape begins to grow ugly and dismal and the road gets very rough and tollsome. And then you come to a sign-board and look up, and what do you think has happened? Why, The Easiest Way has become The Hardest Way.

Ruth Cameron

Wonderful Cures Reported in Germany.

The use of simple herbs as remedies instead of the more concentrated and usually more dangerous inorganic substances, has been revived very widely of late. In Germany a new school of physicians has arisen which throws out almost a whole of the pharmacopoeia and relies on an adaptation of the method of wild animals in curing themselves.

It was Dr. R. V. Pierce, chief consulting physician to the Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute of Buffalo, N. Y., who first advocated the extended use of some of our native roots, such as: Golden seal and Oregon grape root, manradie and queen's root, black cherrubark. These are the chief ingredients in Doctor Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, which has been so well and favorably known for nearly half a century. A harmless cleanser and stomach tonic that nature has provided.

J. D. MATHESON, ESQ.

J. DONALD MATHESON of Ossining, N. Y., says: "I suffered for over five years with what the doctors told me was indigestion of the stomach, associated with a catarrhal condition of same, and nervous heart. I had tried enough nux, bismuth, gentian, rhubarb, etc., to boat a ship and naturally there was no cure for me, but after reading what eminent doctors said of the curative qualities of the ingredients of 'Golden Medical Discovery' I gave it a fair trial. Took it 'Discovery' and also the 'Pleasant Pills,' and can truthfully say I am feeling better now than I have in years. I cheerfully give permission to print this testimonial, and if any 'doubting Thomases' writes me I will 'put him wise' to the best all-found medicine in the country to-day."

Fashions and Fads.

Waists of dark blue satin with sleeves and gumples in white satin are favorites.

Roman striped ribbon for sashes are a gay and charming note in the fashion world.

Skunk fur, plush, maline and paradise all together appear on some of the new hats.

One of the newest features of brassiers is the trimming down the center of the front.

Lace sashes and sleeves are another method of using lace and producing a filmy effect.

Taupe, seal brown, mole, plum, prune and navy are the fashionable colors at this moment.

In rich negligees, laces and nets are used over soft pastel linings. So are pompadour chiffons.

The entire tendency of women's dress is toward unparalleled richness of material and trimming.

Novelty materials, rough and rich looking, are used for auto coats, and cut very loose or semifitted.

Spangled and beaded tunics for combination with satin gowns are to be found in plenty in the shops.

Bands, medallions and ornaments of metal are employed on the afternoon and evening wraps and costumes.

Tunic draperies of transparent lace, like Chantilly, shadow and maline, are often seen on evening gowns.

Clever use of red is one of the season's smartest features. One sees it in evening gowns, but especially in wraps.

Brick red and Persian red are both in high favor. Strong yellows are much used in veiled effects for evening.

Most of the tailored skirts are not trimmed; all the elaboration is in the coats. But some of the skirts have pleats.

At the recent Paris races some white crocheted velvet dresses were half composed of black plush fringed with ermine tails.

Bright colors veiled with chiffon are much used by Paris blouse makers. Brocades, oriental prints and lamie cloth are all used in this way.

The plain velveteens for dresses are usually plainly made up, with straight lines in the skirts and some transparent material in the waists.

A white satin blouse with white embroidery has a military severity; the bishop sleeve has a strap of embroidery to match those across the front. Nothing is too rich or exotic for the present evening gown. Supple brocades are in highest favor, the most luxurious having foundations of finely woven metal tissue.
